EVERY DAY the students at Douglas Freeman climb steps, open lockers, go through lines, and shut doors in a pattern that is almost changeless. The teachers spend their time checking rolls, covering blackboards and erasing them, and grading papers with a planned system. There are those who drift unseeingly through the pattern of days. To others, events whirl past in a blur of actions.

Seen through the projection opening on the second floor, students crowded into the auditorium for an assembly take on a new look. As students hurry up an icy walk, a few notice untrampled snow on the flagpole steps. In a warm breeze skirts billow into a swirling pattern. How aware are you of the unusual angle, the unnoticed patterns, the fragile moments? Take another look . . .

How many ways do you remember your school?

FACES . . . Do you watch them change? At a club meeting a speaker answers a question; a president calls for order. In the bleachers a face is anguished, tense, jubilant. In the classroom a face contorts with concentration, crinkles into laughter, masks a day-dreamer. Have you seen them?

LITTLE THINGS emerge from the blur. A shade clatters wildly against the window frame, shattering the quiet of a test in progress. A wasp buzzes into the room, or in winter the rain and wind whistle through the vent in the corner. On a standardized test the blocks with black answers jump out in zig-zag patterns. Halfway down the steps, a student pauses to look out at snow falling, to hope for a holiday. . . .

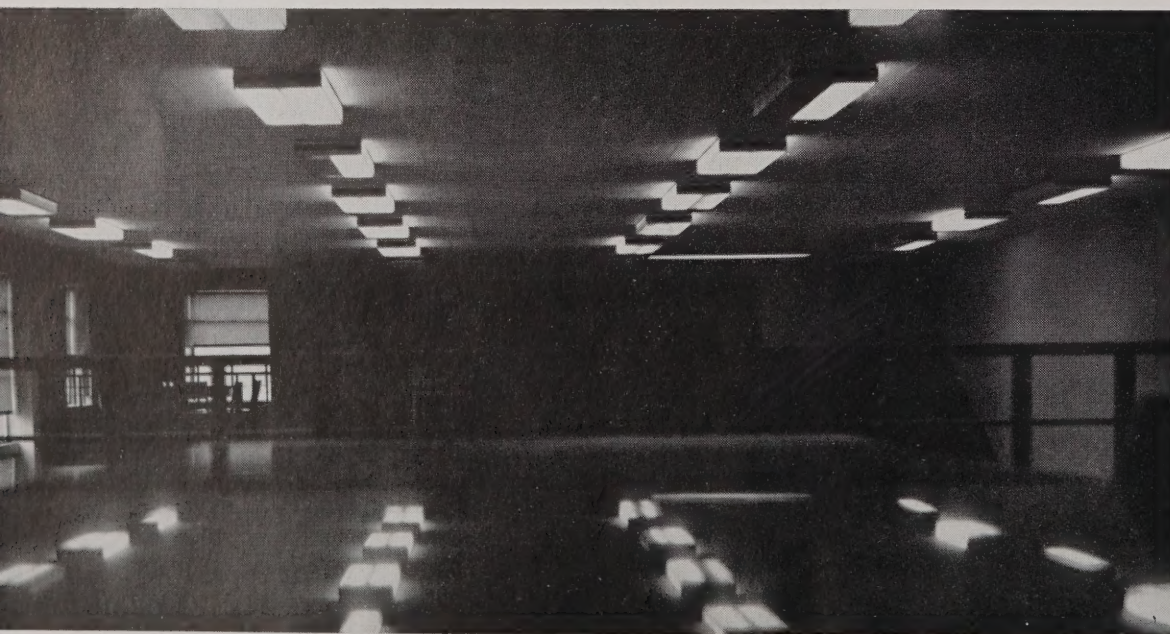

A NEW PERSPECTIVE can give a fresh appeal to school life. How does a football game look to a cheerleader? How do the majorettes practice a routine sitting down? How do the fans appear to a player on the field? To a spotter in the press box above them?

MOMENTS blur together in the pattern of the days, but singled out, an instant can become distinct and vivid. During a timeout players are busy with towels though they listen intently to the coach. One slumps to the bench; another leans to congratulate him. Band members watch a football game absorbedly, forgetting everything but the action.

DISCOVERY of a place where most students never go can break the routine. Behind the cafeteria, beyond the kitchen is Mrs. Kathleen Pritchett's office, flanked by rows and rows of government surplus, laced by lines for drying dish towels. In the boiler room below the office, football uniforms and towels stretch across other lines to dry when the weather is bad.

PATTERNS come into focus as you look around you. On the library balcony, ceiling lights march in straight rows across the polished surface of an empty table. In the halls the patterns continue in the lines of lockers, some open, some without locks. Across from a row of lockers there is usually a water fountain. It doesn't always work How many of these things do you notice?

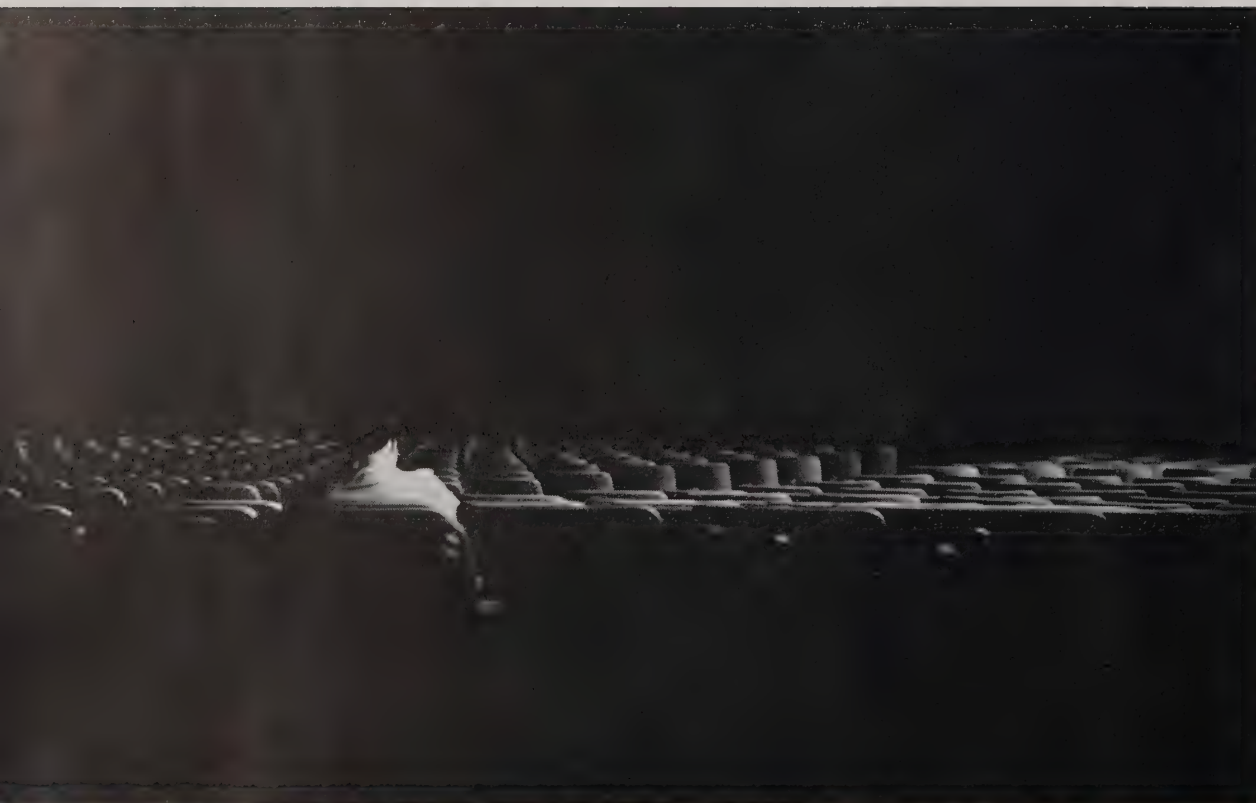

HOW WELL DO YOU KNOW
DOUGLAS FREEMAN HIGH SCHOOL
YOUR SCHOOL AND ITS LIFE? . . .

HAVE YOU NOTICED how busy the students at DSF are? They take trips and attend conventions. They have dances . . . climb rafters, untangle strings, push mops across the gym floor. In the cafeteria they make the most of a twenty-five-minute break. Have you sat at a cafeteria table for eight with twenty other people? Have you tried to "stand up and holler" when you were sitting on the gym floor holding a pile of books? Have you watched people form shifting patterns across the lawn, in the halls, on buses? Were you ever backstage after a student production? During one? Have you listened to the sounds of our school . . . lockers banging, bells, the PA system, the cafeteria clatter?

AN APPREHENSIVE TEAM ENJOYS THE CHEERING AT A PEP RALLY. IN THE GAME THEY WILL BE OBLIVIOUS TO IT.

Fans, gridgers see different aspects of game

NOW MINUS HIS TOWEL and sweat shirt, former Rebel football manager, John Irby, University of Maryland freshman, performs one of his old duties again as he repairs shoulder pad lacings for halfback Bob Duggan at the Teejay game.

In the scorching heat of late August, football began with sweat and dust clouds as usual. But this was a special season, Football 1959, with a team of inexperienced boys who struggled through early morning and late afternoon practices to perfect their plays.

The work was broken by Blue and Gray Days, after-lunch pep rallies, and blue and gray plaid cheerleaders' kilts as game nights approached. The first game was with Manchester, but DSF won only the gold coin from the toss up. Sunday afternoon, movies showed the mistakes, and Monday's practice was tougher than ever.

Rewards came in the fourth game as the Rebel gridgers beat Albemarle in Charlottesville. Through their foggy, cold Homecoming night, the Patriots tossed icy apples from their floats to the visitors in the stands. Senior boys appeared with sun glasses and cheerleader megaphones and followed the team to Buddy's to celebrate the victory.

During the games, whistles, referees, clocks, and possible plays crowded the minds of the football players. They never saw the pseudo-beats leading cheers, the IBM-machine confetti flying about, the Hi-Y programs sailing from the roof at Parker Field, and the men parading through the stands selling watery hot chocolate and cold "hot-popcorn."

At the close of the season, the senior players received laurels for their work when the cheerleaders pinned paper honor footballs on their shoulders and led them to the glory line before the students in the gym. That night, before the opening kickoff against Petersburg, the same thirteen boys lined up with silver helmets in hand, in front of the rest of the team for the last time.

While strains of the national anthem stirred throughout the stadium, thoughts wandered from the season just past to the year ahead. What seemed to be the end was only a firm beginning.

TEAM SPIRIT ERUPTING FROM EXCITED REBELS CARRIES TO THE PHOTOGRAPHER ON PARKER FIELD ROOF.

SMEARED WITH THE MUD of Parker Field, John Campbell and Jay Johnston limp toward the team bus. A step behind is Gernot Spallek, who saw his first football game this fall.

TIRED, BATTERED, DEJECTED, the boys leave the bus after another one-touchdown loss at Parker Field. With hot showers and the sound of low voices, the athletes will unwind slowly, dress, and then meet their dates and go to Bill's.

Homecoming held on Monday after deluge

MISS VIRGINIA, DSF alumna Sue Williams, removes the pin from the satin band that will designate Tish Paschall as Maid of Honor. Dr. Davis Y. Paschall and Billy Askew turn to watch.

Friday, November 6, four o'clock . . . the dark skies which had threatened all day sent heavy clouds tumbling in with gloomy rain, rain, and more stinging cold rain. Partially decorated convertibles with tops up were moved into any available shelter to keep the painted banners and napkin-stuffed badminton nets dry.

By 6:30 the decree was final! Homecoming was postponed until Saturday night. Decorations were carefully tucked away, corsages returned to the refrigerator, and the Lane football team turned around to slosh back up Route 250 to Charlottesville. The Key Club boys turned off the hot dogs and took the rolls from the oven. Telephones rang and girls broke dates for Friday, leaving the boys with two dates for Saturday!

Saturday came, soggy and bitter as the night before. Again Homecoming 1959 was postponed, but by Monday the dripping rain had cleared to a crisp cold. At seven o'clock that evening the hot dogs and coffee were cooking, as the princesses sought their places in the parade line. Flashbulbs sparkled, policemen stopped traffic on Three Chopt Road, and the parade began at last!

Minutes before half-time the princesses left the warmth of heavy blankets and lined up for the crowning. Hearing her name called, each girl tried to miss tripping in cleat holes as she walked alone down the 50-yard line. The breathless wait and the final announcement gave way to applause. Alumna Sue Williams stepped forward to crown Pam Coddington.

Though not quite a victory in the books, Homecoming 1959 at last won out. No one lingered in the bitter cold after the game except the boys cleaning up the shack and warming by a bonfire of trash. When the lights went out in the stadium, they hurried away. School still began at 8:15 on Tuesday.

THE CONCESSION STAND, operated in shifts by the Key Club and Mr. Baggett, was a welcome sight for freezing Rebels. Bert Morrison, DSF alumnus, buys hot coffee from David Olton.

WHEN THE HOMECOMING GAME ENDED, more festivities were yet to come. The next Saturday, a week and a day late, pumpkins, turkeys, and cornstalks again adorned the cafeteria.

Class productions vary from deep sea to attic

Sklop! Sklop! Sklop! Echoing in the hushed auditorium, rubber fins brought Sergeant Friday, Stanley Hughes, and his sidekick Ben Blanton into the Junior Class production "Fishnet." The ominous strains of "Dragnet" ushered the audience to the blue-green realm of Davy Jones' Locker, as the skin-diving, trench-coated cops pushed through curtains of seaweed in their investigation of suspicious activities on the ocean floor. While Hughes and Blanton snooped around the Locker, theatrical agent Jones, Tom Krattenmaker, and emcee Tim O'Keefe introduced a colorful array of talent and aquatic characters. Though distracted temporarily by the floor show, the officers at last remembered their municipal duty and yelled "Raid!", scattering talent all over the seven seas.

BEFLIPPED AND BEGOGGLED law officers, Ben Blanton and Stan Hughes, move in to nab a submarine criminal but can't quite hold back the snickers as they make their hilarious appearance.

"I WANT SOMETHING NOW, NOT A THOUSAND YEARS FROM NOW!" AN ANGUISHED PETER CRIES OUT TO ANNE.

"She puts me to shame." As Bill Sheldon uttered these words, the curtain closed on the senior class play, The Diary of Anne Frank. Bill's truly outstanding portrayal of Otto Frank and Anne Hoffer's as Anne prompted a standing ovation and DSF's first demand repeat performance.

The official approval for the second presentation the next Wednesday did not come soon enough. Mike Caver had already gotten a haircut and no longer quite looked the part of Peter, the teenage boy who shared the Frank's attic hiding place for two and a half years. Tickets were collected from Saturday's performance, stamped with Wednesday's date, and resold. Stunt Night practice was postponed three days to keep from moving the elaborate set that recreated the attic of a Dutch factory.

During the week before the play, the cast had added to the usual publicity by giving at a pep rally the humorous "Mrs. Quack-quack" scene, which started with Anne teasing Peter about his cat, Mouschi, and ended with Peter sprawled on the floor, the victim of one of Anne's mischievous pranks.

In addition to Anne, Bill, and Mike, the seniors playing Dutch Jews hiding from the terror of the Nazi occupation were Adair Prewitt as Mrs. Frank, Anne Alex White as Anne's sister Margot, the Van Daans played by Margaret Cole and Mal Freeman, and Bobby Kidd as Mr. Dussel, the ever-complaining dentist. Bill Mears and Margaret Bredahl played Mr. Kraler and Miep, the Hollanders who supplied the refugees with food. Miss Marlise Bok, a former Hollander, directed the play.

BACKSTAGE the cast, crew, and director of "The Diary of Anne Frank" show signs of opening night jitters. Mike Caver and Anne Alex White review light cues with stage hand Dave Olton.

Assemblies, productions crowd fall activity

CLOWNING IN THE BACK HALL during the wait to go on stage at Stunt Night, Mr. Clean, Jim King, totes a lightweight Tommy Hastings while other cast members mill around.

Fall days had passed in the swirling color of autumn leaves and cool afternoons when homerooms and clubs assembled baskets of food and presented them to Sheltering Arms Hospital in the annual Thanksgiving Assembly.

Coming back from the long Thanksgiving weekend, students despaired of the long wait until the Christmas holidays, only to find that activities and classes sped the days by. In an impressive and inspiring program, the National Honor Society tapped twenty-two seniors into its ranks, the highest honor a student can gain.

WITH ONLY THREE DAYS for rehearsals in the auditorium, the dramatics class helps to arrange sets for Stunt Night.

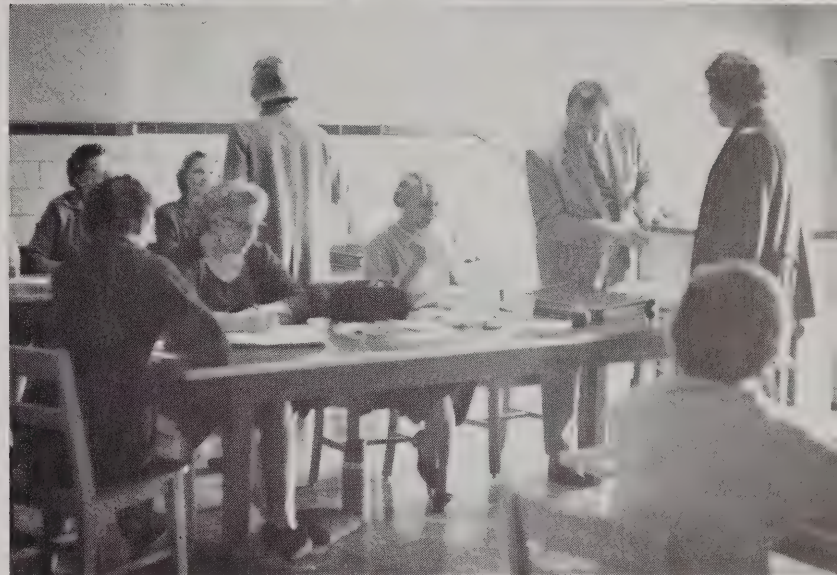

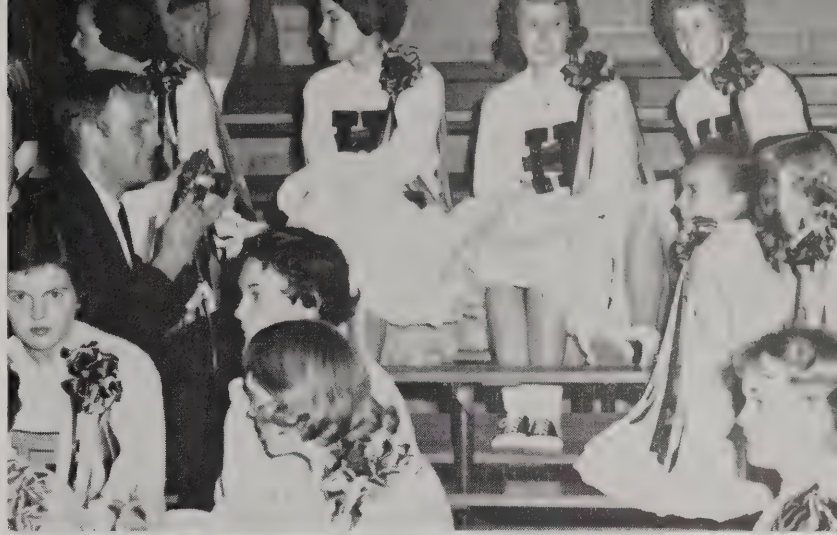

The days wore on and long afternoons were spent in rehearsals as club members put the finishing touches on skits for Stunt Night. Mimicking antics of small children enacting the poem "Twas the Night Before Christmas," Y-Teens Triangle I captured first place in this annual SCA production.

Hours of practice again paid off for Rebel cheerleaders, as they placed as one of the three finalist squads in Thalhimier's Annual Cheer Rally for the fourth consecutive year.

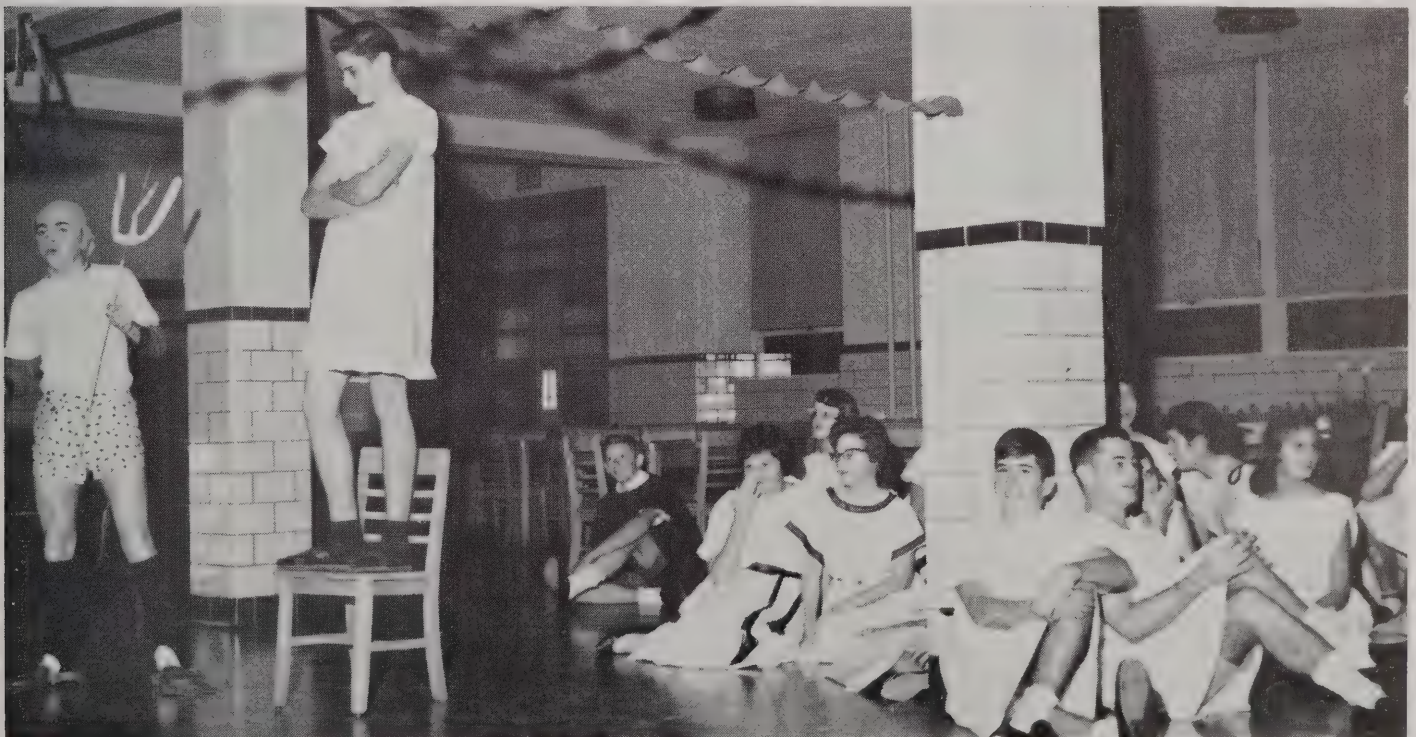

Christmas and its magical effect captivated DSF students, leading them into pre-holiday excitement and activities. Stacks of old toys and second hand clothing for the Hi-Y and the Key Club drive grew larger in the corners of homerooms during the weeks before Christmas. Early birds made out Christmas card lists with the aid of the newly revised Cub Club Directory, while others worked on class projects, the Glee Club Concert, and made preparations for the Classical Society's party. Miss Sally Gowan helped add to the holiday enthusiasm by wearing her novel seasonal earrings, which students have come to expect each year.

Christmas vacation arrived at last, and almost two full weeks lay in front of freedom-bound Rebel students. Holiday mornings could be spent in that favorite pastime, sleeping, and afternoons were free to go bowling and watch the ludicrous TV favorites, Yogi Bear and the Three Stooges. Judging from presents found under many Rebel trees Christmas morn, Douglas Freeman had gone Ivy League. High on the list of popular presents were scarabs, Weeguns, and books. After school began again, teachers grading book reviews discovered that Freeman students had a best seller list of their own as The Catcher in the Rye, On the Beach, and The Ugly American circulated through study halls.

THE FIRST SNOW of the season brought hopes for a holiday. They faded the next morning when students awoke to clear streets and only a thin white powder on the ground.

Snow, tournament add zest to school pattern

Hopes for snow were diminishing as January drew to its close, and skies remained clear of ominous gray clouds. Then there was snow, and then more snow, bringing four fun-filled unexpected holidays to students and teachers. The hills of Roslyn and the Country Club of Virginia became miniature winter resorts as Rebels joined other area students on sleds and flying saucers.

Going into the Central District Basketball Tournament as underdogs, the Rebels snatched a thrilling victory from Petersburg. In the semi-finals they lost to Thomas Jefferson, who still smarted from the Rebs' deep-freeze tactics in an earlier game.

Winter spent itself abruptly and suddenly hot weather came, leaving no space for spring. Conforming to the sudden change in the weather, girls cut their long locks into pixie hair cuts and some underclass boys, usually brunette, turned blonde. The cafeteria was deserted at lunch time although only fifteen minutes of a lunch period had passed. Rebels couldn't resist the attraction of warm sunny days and convertibles outside in the parking lot, waiting to be inspected and admired.

The athletic field once again filled with color as teams abandoned the gymnasium and wrestling room. Odd combinations of beat-up sweatshirts and cut-off long pants served as practice togs for the track team. In contrast were the blue and tan uniforms outfitting the Rebel nine. On the hill overlooking the diamond, the newly-formed tennis team crowded onto three courts, while for those not practicing athletics the rapids on the James River were a favorite haunt on hot afternoons.

Seniors dance amid Plantation Splendor

Friday, March 25 brought an almost unrecognizable gym filled with seniors, stepladders, scaffolding, and seven miles of baby blue crepe paper. Earlier, there had been class meetings with Charlie Eacho's hilarious progress reports, endless crepe paper-stretching parties, and afternoons of measuring, cutting, and painting the long strips of brown paper which Pat Meagher, Ira Smith, and other senior artists turned into the moss-draped walls of a Southern garden and the façade of a plantation mansion.

With the walls and ceiling in place on Saturday, nurserymen arrived to set up the foundation planting. The court sought floor space for their final figure practice, while the more intrepid boys clambered into the rafters to tighten the guy wires supporting the billowing crepe paper ceiling. At six o'clock Mr. Baggett locked the doors of the gym, now empty, no longer a gym. The seniors were by now transforming themselves from dusty, exhausted workers into the carefree couples who would return at nine to dance for a few short hours in "Plantation Splendor."

Royal guests that evening were Karen Burke, Sara Page Cosby, Pam Coddington, Brooke Davila, Jill Gary, Carole Harris, Aleen Harper, Carolyn Hickey, Anne Jolly, Kristy Knapp, Susan Shepherd. Their escorts were Pat Baird, Andy Brown, Charles Eacho, Dave Forsythe, Tommy Grant, Jay Johnston, Bill Marmon, Jim Massie, Randy Trow, Gernot Spallek, and Archie Yeatts.

SIPA readies DSF juniors for editorship

ARRIVING SAFARI-STYLE at the Mayflower Hotel, Bill Marmon and Barry Fratkin remove rope and canvas from the luggage atop the car. School books and legal pads fill the rear window.

"Will three legal pads be enough?"

"Let's get three more just in case."

The just-in-case extras came in handy for the year-book staff when they attended the 1959 SIPA convention in Lexington, Virginia. Attending every panel discussion, lecture and short course they could, the twelve delegates from the Commentator and HISTORIAN soon covered the yellow pads with valuable red-inked notes.

Thursday night the staffs marked their convention programs, underlining who was going where. The next day was full of journalism clinics. Before it was over, the delegates found themselves taking an active part—leading panel discussions, comparing publications, and sharing views. They were soon defending their own ideas while they remained open to better and fresher ones.

Following the banquet Friday evening, excited DSF juniors got ready for the convention dance. While girls shook out crinolines, across the hall the five boys laid out their best coats and ivy ties and scrambled for the cold, slow trickle that was their shower.

On Saturday the delegates received their first place ratings, and then headed for Doremus Gym for the closing luncheon, the end of an exciting and profitable two-day convention.

THE DSF DELEGATION gathers in the center of the floor at the SIPA dance in the Washington and Lee gym before scattering to meet some of the one thousand journalists who attended the convention. HISTORIAN representative Tish Paschall served as a member of hostesses' committee at the dance Friday night.

HAVE YOU LEARNED that extra-curricular activities make hard work fun? Do you know that majorettes, library assistants, nurses' aides, publications staffs spend their study halls each day working on projects? Hours spent after school sometimes extend into darkness. Have you been the last one to leave the staff room? Were the doors chained when you wanted to go out? Were your clothes smeared with green from painting the windows of the gym? Have you gotten printers' ink on your fingers from galleys and proof sheets? Have you sat in class and listened to the crunch of marching feet on the driveway gravel as the band practiced? Have you ever listened to all the announcements in one day?

Council revises limiting and merit systems

PREPARING FOR THE FIRST NEW CLASS in three years, the SCA produced DSF's first printed handbook, President Jay Johnston discusses plans with John Fritzlen and Linda Basheer.

"The SCA handbook committee will meet this afternoon in room 108. The SCA merit system committee will meet this afternoon in the library."

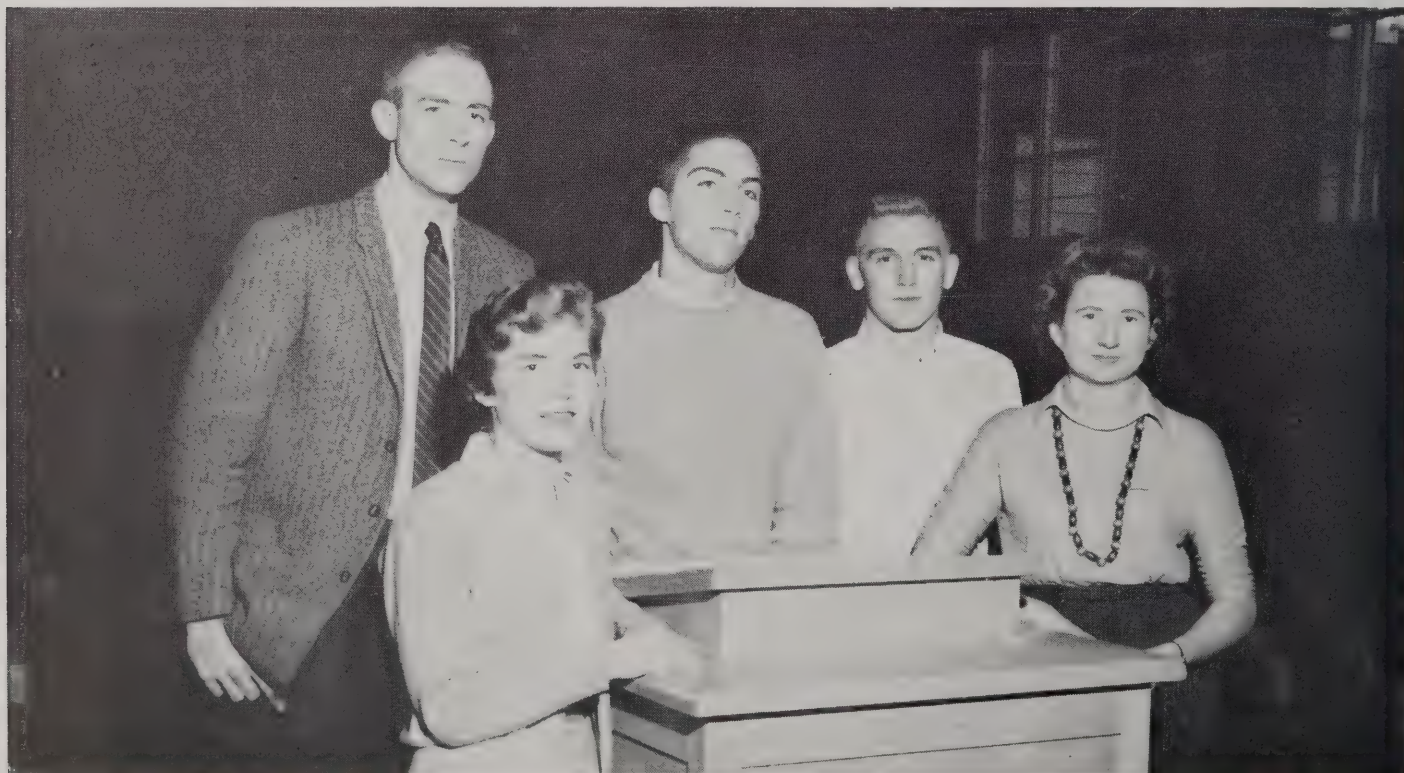

This crowded afternoon agenda was a frequent occurrence as the two major SCA projects of 1960 slowly took shape. Planned in the fall months, these projects consumed the bulk of the SCA's working time for the remainder of the year.

As a result of the growth and change in DSF's first six years, student leaders gave the merit system its first total evaluation and revision. This system, which distributes points to students who participate in school activities, was the basis for awarding SCA letters in June. After weeks of post-school debates and the exchange of ideas, the merit system committee presented their suggestions to the student council. Several minor adjustments were made in council before the system was given to the school in a special SCA assembly. All seven divisions of the revised system passed.

In preparation for next year's entering class from Tuckahoe Junior High School, the student council voted to publish the first printed edition of the "Rebel Yell." David Forsythe headed the committee responsible for the book. Traditions, organizations and all extra-curricular activities were summarized and explained.

In an attempt to become more familiar with other schools in the Richmond area, DSF accepted an invitation to join the Richmond Federation of Student Councils. One of the main outlets for student government energy was the DSF convention schedule. At the District Convention at Charles City, the Richmond Federation Convention at John Marshall High School, and again at the State SCA Convention at Longwood College, representatives shared ideas and opinions with delegates from other schools.

At the first assembly of the year, Tish Paschall and Bill Marmon, DSF representatives to Girls' and Boys' States, related their summer experiences on the Radford College and VPI campuses. As one of two delegates from the state of Virginia, Tish told of her trip to Girls' Nation in Washington, D. C.

The SCA's annual Stunt Night presented amusing take-offs on popular television programs and TV clichés familiar to Freemanites. Taking first prize, Y-Teens Triangle I gave a hilarious portrayal of "Twas the Night Before Christmas," directed by Anne Barden. Funds from the production went into the SCA treasury.

The final major task was the setting up of a system limiting the extra-curricular responsibility of students, distributing leadership positions among more students. The SCA carefully devised a system and presented it to the administration. It was passed with only minor changes, and its effective date was set as February 1, 1961.

Officers for the year were Jay Johnston, president; Bucky Pritchard, vice-president; Cathy Shipman, secretary; and Bill Marmon, treasurer. Miss Ada Land and Miss Sally Gowan were sponsors.

Minimum scholastic requirement raised by NHS

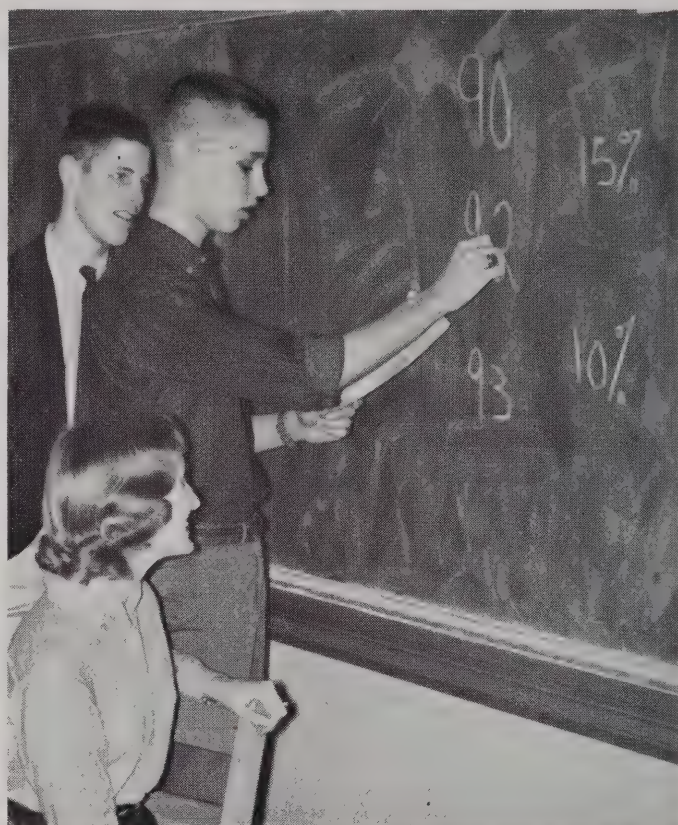

One might wonder what Communism has to do with honesty. Dr. J. Levering Evans cleverly used the former to emphasize the dangers of dishonesty at a National Honor Society assembly. A day earlier Mr. Joseph Nettles of the University of Richmond impressed underclassmen with the importance of honesty.

In the fall tapping seniors and juniors watched one after another of 22 seniors being tapped in the traditional dignified ceremony. While an embarrassed Dodie Benson hunted for Elinor Nolde, who was not sitting with her homeroom, their bewilderment turned to amazement and finally to laughter. In the spring, newly-tapped juniors typified the excited inductee. Parents joined them at the reception in the library.

In April the group met to discuss raising the requirements and decided to up the minimum academic average from 90 to 92.

President Dave Forsythe, aided by sponsors Miss Ada Land and Miss Sally Gowan and vice-president Margaret Cole, secretary Jill Gary, and treasurer Bill Mears, arranged the tapping ceremonies.

Carefree Gallic group enjoys events of year

Le Cercle Sans Souci, the carefree group, lived up to their name more than ever before. On their trip to Washington, D. C., they visited the French embassy, saw a French movie, and enjoyed hors d'oeuvres and vichyssoise at a French restaurant. At their tea at Kristy Knapp's home in February, Miss Pat Forrest, formerly a music major at Agnes Scott College, entertained at the piano.

Strains of the carols, "Entre les Boeufs" and "Dans les Ombres," floated into classrooms on the last school day before Christmas holidays. Intrigued students peeked into the halls to view the French carollers.

Christienne Gillette, an exchange teacher from Nice, spoke at the Christmas meeting, contrasting French and American culture and customs. During Language Emphasis Week in February, Olivier Roux, a student from Union Theological Seminary, participated in the panel of foreign students in the language assembly. An after-school bake sale of pastries ended the week.

Miss Pat Forrest was French Club advisor this year. Shelley Markham served as president, Margie Goerner as vice-president, and Mary Beard as secretary-treasurer.

Spallek lends authenticity to club discussions

PLANS FOR TRAVEL in Europe in the coming summer make the study of German an exciting reality for senior Elinor Nolde, who looks at maps and an itinerary with Miss Marlise Bok.

A spicy smell of gingersnaps and the appetizing aroma of German chocolate cake seeped through the halls and into sixth period classes as German Club members prepared for their bake sale ending Language Emphasis Week.

Earlier in the week, foreign students participated in a panel discussion in dual assemblies. Karin Bach, German exchange student at John Marshall High School, and Gernot Spallek, DSF senior from Dortmund, commented on their first impressions of the United States, answering questions posed by panel moderator, Bill Marmon. Both noted the informality characteristic of their school experience in America. At meetings, Gernot gave first-hand information and insight into the German way of life.

Earlier in the year at Stunt Night, audiences viewed a German western. Popular on television, the adult western Gunsmoke was just as big a hit on the DSF stage, as an all-male cast of German clubbers presented a hilarious take-off.

The group joined other language clubs in singing Christmas carols before the holidays. A March program feature was "A Night with Schiller" by Professor Rudolph Wagner of RPI.

Miss Marlise Bok was club advisor this year. John Schuster served as president; Carolyn Moody, vice-president; Joan Faulhaber, secretary; and George Hoffer, treasurer.

Bienvenidos a Juan! In January Spanish classes extended warm greetings to Juan Loeza of Morelia, Mexico, guest of Spanish teacher, Mr. Harvey Lowder. Although he had been speaking English only a short while, Juan delighted DSF students with his first impressions of the United States when he participated on the panel in the Language Emphasis Week assembly.

The Spanish Club, composed of Spanish students maintaining a B average, met at members' homes on Sunday or Friday afternoons. At one afternoon gathering, Mr. Benjamin Sowell, U.S. Consul stationed in Peru, led a discussion and answered the students' questions on Communism. As one of their social events, seventeen members attended a Spanish ballet at the Mosque.

Represented by Phoebe Flinn in Homecoming festivities, Spanish clubbers gave chilly Rebel fans a touch of sunny Mexico. Following their pony cart, Terry Kinum strutted in the costume of a rich caballero, escorting the muchachas in their gala serape-covered convertible.

During Language Emphasis Week the club awarded medals to students with the highest averages. Those receiving the awards were: Carolyn Brewster, Spanish I; Jack Bibb, Spanish II; Sandra Linville, Spanish III; and Andrea Perham, Spanish IV.

This year Linda Griffin served as president; Brenda Wade, secretary; and Tommy Grant, treasurer. Mr. Harvey Lowder and Mrs. Vicki Marsee were advisors.

New members serve as slaves at annual party

"Going—going—gone! Sold to the man in the white toga!" shouted auctioneer Tom Krattenmaker at the Classical Society's annual Christmas party. Excitement and tension ran high during the bidding as the auctioneer sold new members, garbed in short tunics, as slaves to the highest bidder. Following the auction, the slaves began their jobs of faithfully serving their masters throughout the evening. At the close of the party, they became fullfledged members.

Once again togas and tunics were the costume for the annual Roman banquet on April 8. Third and fourth year Latin students presented skits from the stories of Ovid and Virgil.

Mrs. Marian West, Latin teacher at St. Catherine's School, showed color slides of Rome and other European cities at one meeting. As an outside project, the Latin IV students attended a production of "Dido and Aeneas," an opera presented by the Richmond Musicians Club.

This year Mrs. Evelyn Balthis was the advisor; Terry Hollett and Cathy Shipman, consuls. Other officers were Anne Barden, censor; Jay Hereford, quaestor; and Janet Hartman, secretarius-curatorium.

CYL activities include devotionals, projects

Mr. Easter Bunny arrived early at the Medical College of Virginia with baskets, brimming full of colored eggs and marshmallow chicks. Though the big white rabbit was there only in spirit, members of the CYL made up for it and brought cheer to the patients as well as Easter gifts.

Meeting each morning in the auxiliary cafeteria, the Christian Youth League held devotions to prepare for the day's work and to plan service projects. The group filled a Christmas stocking for an elderly woman at the Baptist Home for the Aged and sent a present to a girl at the Bon Air Home for Girls.

A talk, entitled "Can God Depend on You?" given by Mrs. Harry Eaton, leader of the Trinity Methodist Youth Fellowship, highlighted a year of useful activity. The topic prompted discussion and resulted in self-evaluation by each member.

The officers were Susan Shepherd, president; Diane Miller, vice-president; Janet Hartman, secretary; and Lynda Gunther, treasurer. Mrs. Jerry Noland and Miss Ida Speeks, new sponsors, advised the club.

Faculty party, conventions mark FHA year

DURING A HOME-NURSING PROGRAM, Ellen Abeloff takes Mary Morrison's temperature. Archer Schermerhorn waits to record it on the large demonstration thermometer on the table.

Gingham dogs and calico cats invaded DSF at Thanksgiving time. The animals were a part of the stuffed menagerie that the FHA stitched for children in need of toys. With the holiday spirit in the air and Christmas very near, the girls planned more service projects. Strains of "The Twelve Days of Christmas" and other familiar carols added to the festivities as the group entertained the faculty at a party. Elinor Nolde, accompanying the Downbeats at a miniature chord organ, added to the gaiety. The Goodwill Industries welcomed ten baskets of food, collected by the girls, to distribute among needy families.

The busy year also had its conventions and rallies. During the summer Martha Rutty and Terry Gary were delegates to the FHA-FFA camp near Bluefield. New ideas and household techniques set the tone for the trip. Martha also represented the club at the state FHA Convention in Roanoke. After the installation of new federation officers at the annual rally at Varina, the girls held a fashion show, modeling their own stylish creations.

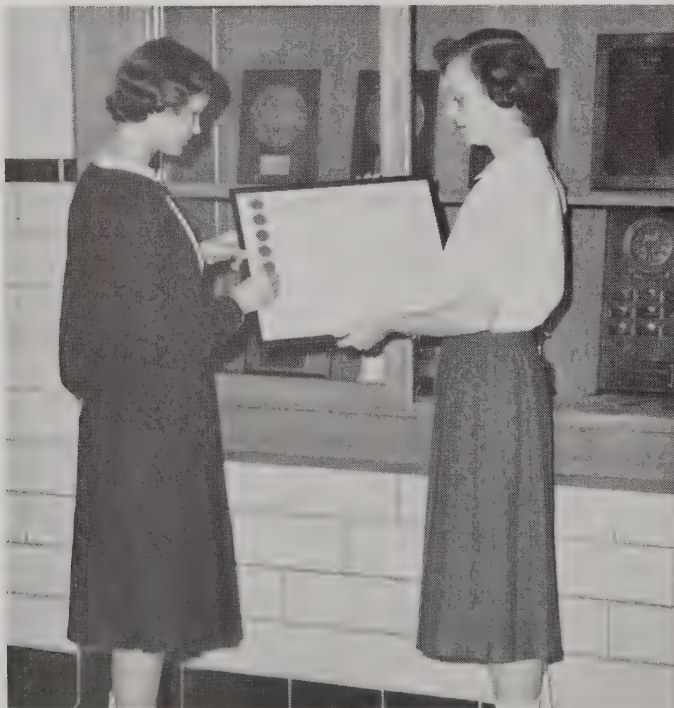

Heading the club this year were Ellen Rennolds, president; Terry Gary, vice-president; Martha Rutty, secretary; Joyce Clark, treasurer; Frances Smith, historian; and Carol Hope, parliamentarian. Mrs. Martha Perkins was the advisor.

FTA activity features candlelight initiation

AN OFFICIAL SEAL annually marks the FTA as members in good standing of the national organization. Judy Sutherland and president Janet Hartman add this year's seal to the charter.

By the shimmering glow of candlelight, the group of ten FTA initiates repeated the pledge to become full-fledged members, after listening to senior members of the chapter give talks on the significance of the name, "Future Teachers of America."

At monthly meetings the girls held informal discussions on classroom procedures and gave individual reports. Mrs. Betty McMullin, the group's advisor, spoke on "Teaching as a Career" at one meeting. A film was a feature of the April gathering.

Throughout the year, the girls were on the lookout for a senior girl who deserved recognition for hard work behind the scenes in school activities. At graduation this senior would receive the Linda Cook Memorial Award, a scholarship. Added to the plaque in the trophy case this year was the name of the 1959 winner, Judy Lipkin.

Group projects included serving coffee and doughnuts to the teachers on the mid-year grading day and baking cakes for the faculty at Christmas and Easter.

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. McMullin, Janet Hartman served as president. The other officers were Nancy Smith, vice-president; Mary Beard, secretary; and Judy Sutherland, treasurer.

ASSISTING IN THE CLINIC, Carolina Eaton rebandages Lea Perkins' thumb, which she caught in a sliding door at home.

Nurses' group becomes Medical Arts Society

The Future Nurses Club this year became the first student group in the Richmond area to receive a charter from the National League of Nursing. The group changed its name to Medical Arts Society to indicate that membership was open to both boys and girls interested in the medical profession instead of only to girls planning nursing careers.

The School of Nursing of the University of Virginia invited the Douglas Freeman MAS to an open house in March. They entertained the girls with movies, tours, and lectures. Mrs. George Sears and Miss Marjorie Peple spoke at one meeting and showed slides on occupational therapy. At Christmas, the girls carolled at the Richmond Nursing Home. Their visit to the Tuckahoe Volunteer Rescue Squad emphasized the importance of a local emergency unit. On their tour of the medical technology laboratory at the Medical College of Virginia, they had their blood typed.

Mrs. Jean O'Keefe and Mrs. Adney Sutphin, representatives from the Medical Auxiliary, sponsored the group. The officers were Mary Strang, president; Karen Kooger, vice-president; Betty Garner, secretary; Lynn Smithey, treasurer; Carolina Eaton, historian.

February snow delays FBLA Valentine fete

"ME!" Judy Ranson gasps unbelievably, an instant after hearing that she is the FBLA Sweetheart. Other dancers enjoy her surprise.

When Judy Ranson sent her date home from the Sweetheart Dance to get his camera, she really meant only to do the HISTORIAN staff a good turn. And when the announcement came that she was queen, Don Eiler almost forgot to take the picture!

In a year typified by the postponement of dances by bad weather, even St. Valentine could not stop the six-inch snowfall which forced FBLA members to put off their annual Sweetheart Dance until February 27. Two weeks after Valentine's Day, Judy reigned as the 1960 Sweetheart and students danced to the music of Don Bishop's Quartet, amid lace-trimmed hearts, cupids, and red streamers.

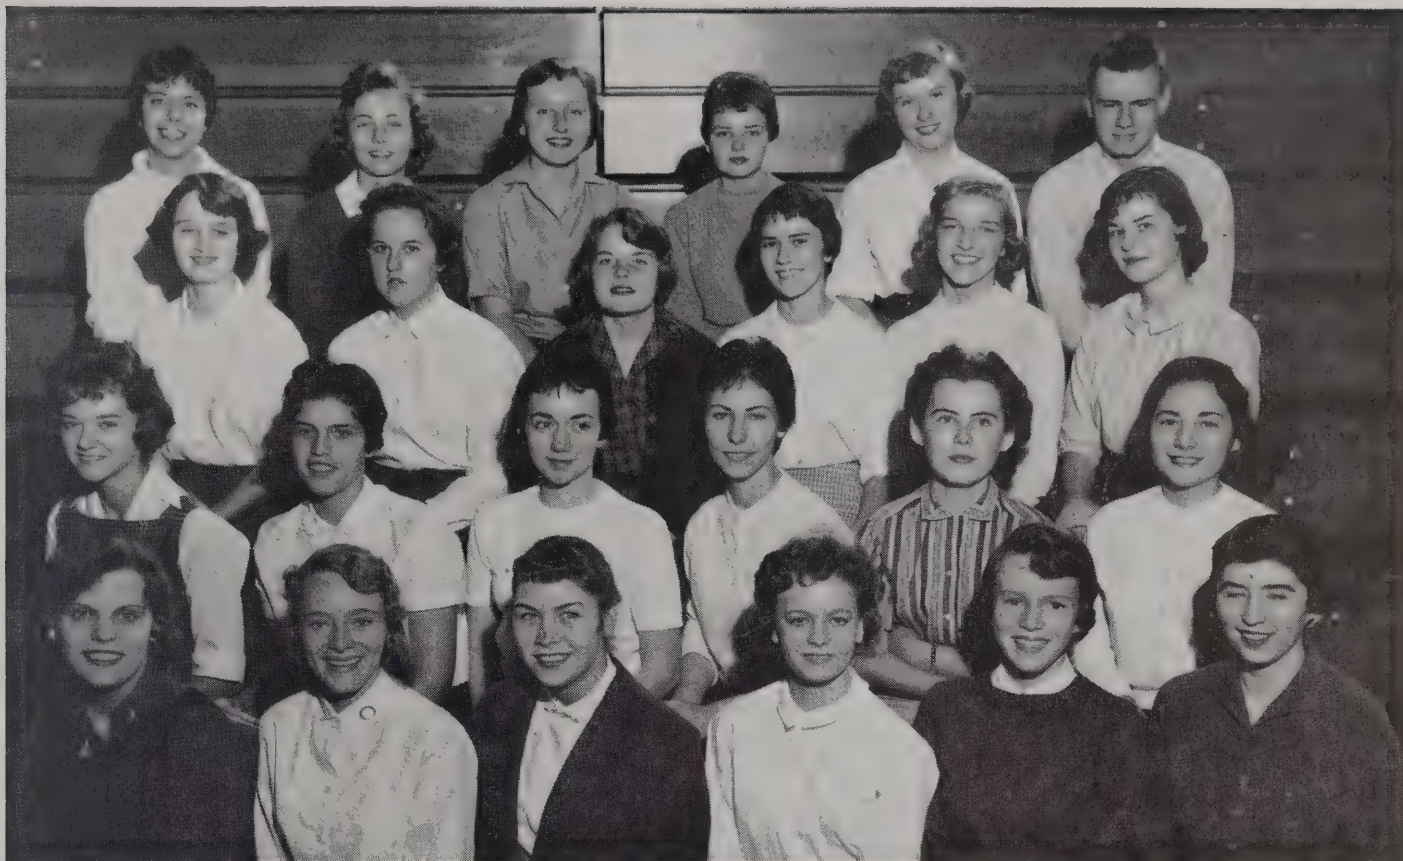

Earlier in the year, duck-like weather had caused double postponements of Homecoming. Finally at the Monday night game, weather permitted Princess Pat Burke, who represented the group, to ride onto the track in a white convertible decorated with the traditional huge FBLA letters of blue and gold.

With sunny skies and warm weather, the Douglas Freeman FBLA attended the regional convention held at Mary Washington College, where Carole Tribble served as treasurer. Besides presenting the program at the convention, the club entered the spelling, essay, Parliamentary Law, and public speaking contests. They also submitted for competition an annual report of the organization's activities, which they planned throughout the year according to the five-point system designed by the National FBLA to increase business knowledge and skill, school and community service projects, and financial and social activities.

FBLA is an extension of business education as taught in the classroom. The theme for the past year was "job opportunities." Programs were presented throughout the year carrying out this theme. Speakers included Mrs. Marvin Jones and Mrs. Ben Saunders, secretaries at DSF; Mrs. Ethel Chrisman of the Southern States Co-operative personnel department, who spoke about qualifications of a good secretary; and Miss Susie Williams, Miss Virginia of 1959, who pointed out the techniques of good grooming.

The FBLA endeavored to train its members for business occupations and to promote business leadership. They encouraged all students taking one or more business subjects to join the organization.

After school and during study halls, FBLA members offered stenographic and clerical services to the school personnel by handling the absentee sheets, memos to teachers, and reports.

Mrs. Peggy Rudder was the faculty advisor. Carole Tribble served as president with Dianne Sullivan as vice-president; Martha Atkinson, secretary; and Rae Carole Faber, treasurer.

Scientists prospect for radio-active eggs

"Students are invited to participate in an atomic Easter egg hunt after school tomorrow. Geiger counters will be provided." Mrs. Virginia Saunders' announcement over the public address system baffled students but intrigued them at the same time. Reporters, photographers, and teachers watched the search, which continued all afternoon and netted one radio-active egg and a prize of a slide rule for sophomore Bobby Larmore.

Earlier in the school year, the club toured research laboratories at the Reynolds Metals Company, Philip Morris Incorporated, Virginia-Carolina Corporation and DuPont Company.

Though the sparks flying from Ronny Barker's Telsa coil attracted most of the visitors as well as first prize at the Science Fair in April, president Herb Sanborn's successful experiment in sound transmission with light waves took second place. First and second place winners in the chemistry competition were Jim Harrison and Dennis Galumbeck.

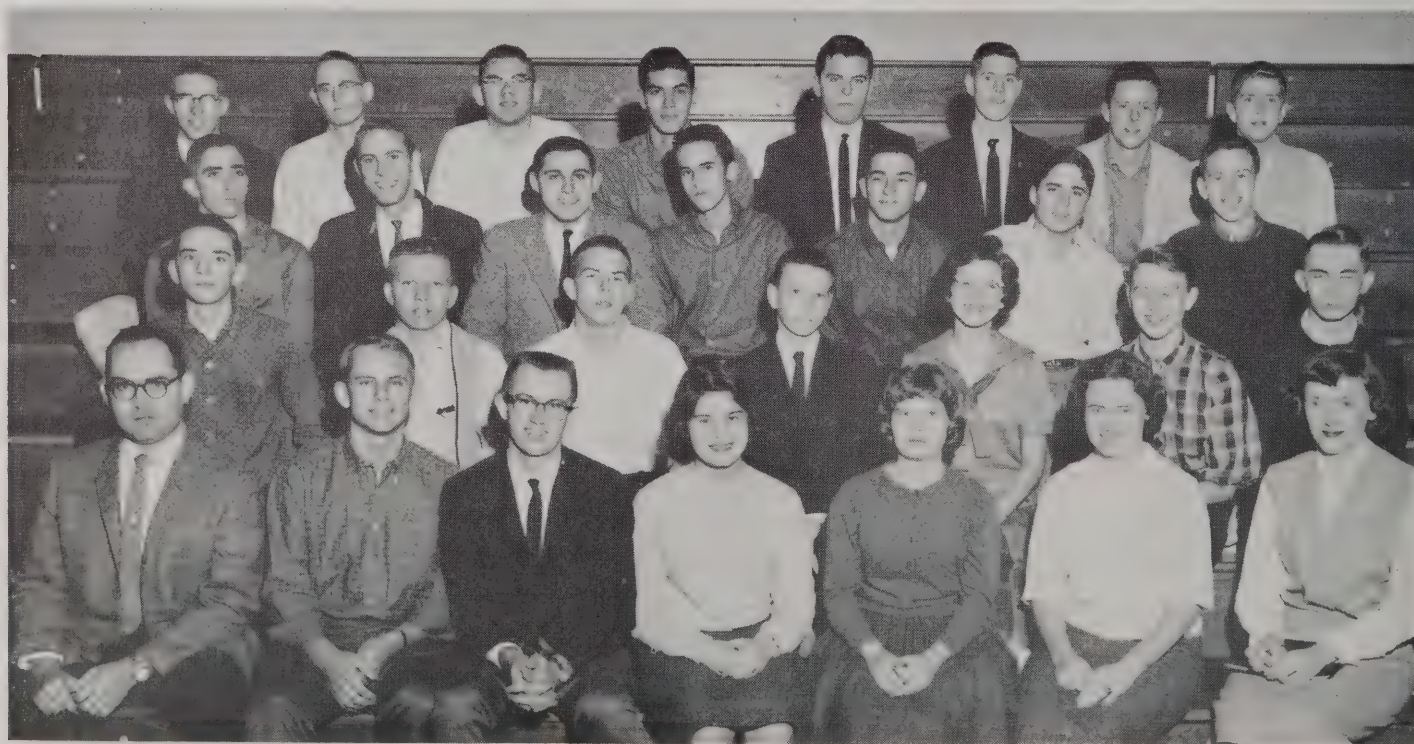

Mrs. Sue Pedigo, advanced chemistry teacher, and Mr. Gerald Ezekiel, physics instructor, shared sponsorship of the organization this year. Herb Sanborn, president, Lynn Stockberger, vice-president, and Randy Dillard, secretary-treasurer, filled officers' positions.

TESTING FOR CARBON DIOXIDE, Jim Harrison hopes for a milky-white solution as he works in the chemistry laboratory.

Biologists enter projects in annual science fair

WITH THE SCIENCE FAIR DRAWING NEAR, Agnes Brown works on her study of the development of the chick embryo. Stuart Simon readies his stuffed crow for the biology competition.

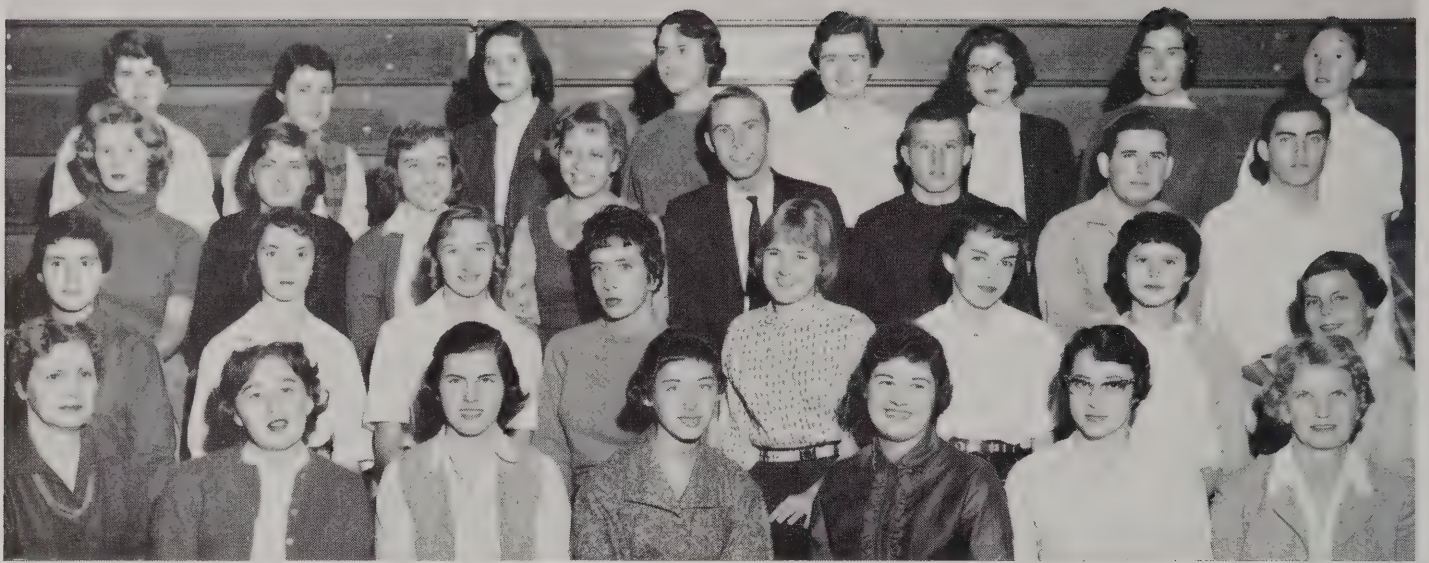

"Bag that bird!" This was the subtle suggestion to a selected group of Miss Shirley Ward's biology students. The order was especially helpful to Biology Club members as an idea for an entry in the spring science fair. All members of the organization were required to enter an exhibit in the fair.

Playing mother hen, Agnes Brown watched her tiny chicks emerge from their shells after the incubation period. The small charges needed constant attention and a warm temperature in order to survive. She observed the chickens and recorded data on their progress.

Because the monthly meetings were held in the biology laboratory, equipment was always available for demonstrations. The students gained valuable information for their individual classes from the club programs.

Choosing new members on the basis of genuine scientific interest, scholastic average and experience in biology courses, the membership committee enrolled students from the many applicants.

The club, a branch of "The Science Club of America," functioned under the guidance of Miss Montelle Boisseau. During the year officers of the club, president Carolina Eaton, vice-president Carole Gibson, secretary Carolyn Hitt, treasurer Wilburn Hatcher, and reporter Louis Briel, offered many imaginative ideas.

Intellectual worm takes first place in parade

Chicken wire stuffed with yellow and white napkins created a scholastic looking worm mounted on the back of the Library Club float. Reading This Earth Is Mine, the intellectual worm bobbed along, wearing a mortar board and horn rimmed glasses. On the front of the car the letters LC nestled in autumn leaves. The cleverly decorated float took top honors at Homecoming.

Stunt Night found the club concentrating on the skit "John Hourly and the News," spotlighting various world situations and impersonating figures currently in the news. Other projects included telling stories at the Crippled Children's Hospital and a field trip to the State Library.

They held monthly meetings either in the library or at a member's home. At one meeting, Mr. Z. T. Kyle, Supervisor of Libraries for the State Department of Education, explained the selection of books for school libraries. Former DSF librarians, Mrs. Lois Luke and Miss Nancy Doggett, talked with members interested in careers as librarians.

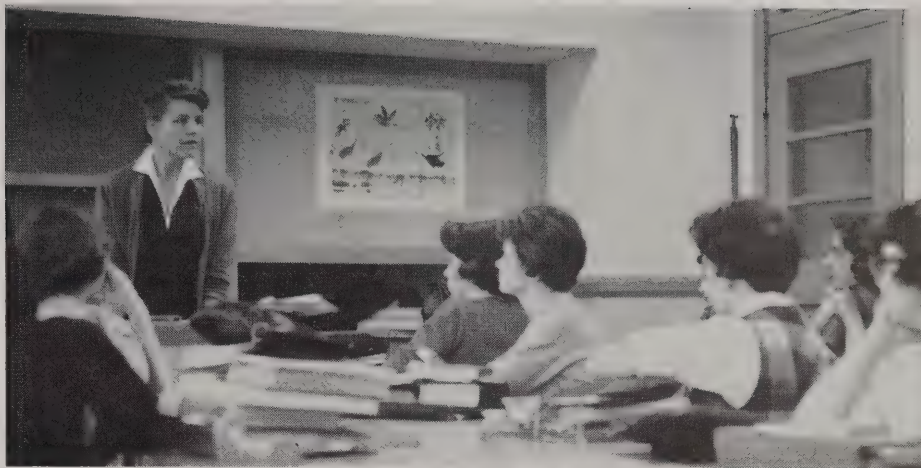

During the Christmas holidays, the Library Club attended a party at which two members told the appropriate stories, "How Come Christmas?" and "The Man Who Owned a Stable." At this time, president Brenda Falls presented William Faulkner's new novel to the library. Following tradition, the group also enjoyed a spring picnic.

Mrs. Virginia Johnson and Mrs. Lorraine Myers sponsored club activities, and Brenda Falls served as president. Serving with her were Mary Strang, vice-president; Ellen Franklin, secretary; and Suzanne Perfater, treasurer.

TAKING ADVANTAGE of the day the library set aside for them, senior library assistant Davy Cottrell and Bill Priest, Susan Armistead, Annette Frischkorn, Gloria Warriner, Malinda Swineford, and Jamel Kassim look over a suggested reading list.

Washington's art galleries beckon service group

Spring 1960 finally came, bringing frothy pink cherry blossoms—and drawing the Art Service Club to Washington, D. C. The group of sight-seers in our nation's capitol was especially interested in the art galleries. The long-anticipated trip was a part of the new emphasis on on activities.

For the first time, members spent alternate Wednesdays in planned programs. Local artists Mrs. Ruth Highland and Mrs. Helen Hull spoke to the group on the topics "What is Art?" and "Art as a Profession." Poster parties helped to produce entries for the Keep Virginia Green and National Safety poster contests.

The organization made its appearance in Homecoming, represented by Betty Waller riding in a fluffy cloud of blue-green napkins. In Stunt Night they presented a take-off on the Art Linkletter interviews. Throughout the year posters and bulletin boards made the halls more attractive. Using such different materials as fish nets and iridescent paper to produce special effects, the girls created eye-catching as well as informative displays.

In order to join in the many projects, an interested student first submitted an example of her work. Those taking art practiced newly-learned techniques.

Under the guidance of Miss Ellen Copenhaver, the officers were Kristy Knapp, president; Carole Harris, vice-president; Paula Powers, secretary; and Betty Waller, treasurer.

They squirmed, twisted their teddy bears' ears, and yanked at the tails of their nighties. Reindeer, clad in tree branch antlers and burlap bags, galloped onto the stage, knocking sets astray. Santa followed, ho-hoing in soprano tones. The audience chuckled, then roared as they watched Y-Teens Triangle I members as second graders enacting "Twas the Night Before Christmas." The skit, which Anne Barden directed, won the $10 first prize in Stunt Night.

During the school year, Triangle I served school and community in many capacities. Each morning members gave devotions over the public address system. The girls served at the Kanawha Recreation Association Banquet, held in the DSF cafeteria in October. As a group they helped the Tuckahoe Rescue Squad with its fund-raising drive by stuffing kits with report forms and pledge cards. Both triangles joined in the March against Muscular Distrophy and the March of Dimes campaigns.

A covering of autumn leaves and twigs which spelled out Y-Teens adorned the Homecoming float for Triangle I princess, Lynda Gunther. Anne Lawrence, princess for Triangle II, rode in a white sports car.

In November, a larger delegation than in any previous year traveled by chartered bus to Washington, D. C. and the annual National Convention. There representatives from both triangles attended the World Fellowship service at the Washington National Cathedral.

Christmas found Triangle I and the Key Club joining forces to give a party for the children at the William Byrd Community Center. Triangle II and the Hi-Y played host to the children at the Methodist Home.

For one meeting, Triangle I girls went to Chesson's Beauty Salon where Mr. Ralph Chesson cut and styled Kristy Knapp's hair. He also discussed beauty tips and techniques with the girls. A representative from a local department store visited a Triangle II meeting and displayed costume jewelry. Several girls modeled the jewelry, and Brooke Davila won a prize of a pair of earrings.

One of the biggest projects of the year for Triangle I was the founding of a group at Tuckahoe Junior High School. They also printed cards with the DSF honor code for the incoming sophomore class.

Roll Call Week, October 18-26, was a highlight in Triangle II's year. Using the theme, "The Past, Present, and Future of Y-Teens in Richmond," Bette Brooks was in charge of city-wide publicity. She and Pam Coddington appeared on a local TV show to explain the plans for the week.

To round out the year for Triangle II, the girls held a Father-Daughter buffet banquet at Trinity Methodist Church. A surprise was a large white sheet cake with the letters Y-Teens Triangle II spelled out in the icing. The Downbeats provided music for the occasion.

Mrs. Nancy Whitbeck directed the activities of Triangle I. Linda Griffin served as president; Anne Barden, vice-president; Margie Goerner, secretary; and Jessica Vaughan, treasurer.

Mrs. Jerry Noland was advisor for Triangle II. Bette Brooks was president; Martha Atkinson, vice-president; Pam Coddington, secretary; Anne Lawrence, treasurer.

Key Club maintains program of varied projects

"Yea, Skins!" shouted jubilant Key Clubbers when they arrived home from Washington, D. C. after the Redskins had thrashed high-riding Baltimore. Another trip took the group to Camp Richmond. While rain lashed the lodge, the boys and their dates enjoyed a picnic meal, dancing, and spontaneous group singing before a crackling fire.

In the fall they weeded and fertilized the trees and shrubs on the school grounds. At Parent Visitation and at PTA meetings, they guided parents through the building. On April 5, a Key Club-sponsored assembly program called to students' attention the four-year celebration of the Civil War Centennial. Prominent Richmonders participated in the forum, outlining plans for the commemoration. Working with Mr. Purdie, the boys planned an old-fashioned songfest for mid-April.

In community projects the boys collected over $200 for the March of Dimes fund drive and distributed "Fight TB" posters. During the Christmas season they joined Y-Teens I to give a party for underprivileged children at the William Byrd Community Center. In a joint Hi-Y-Key Club project, they helped sponsor a clothing drive. Key Club members provided the program for a March West End Kiwanis Club meeting.

Mr. Durwood E. Baggett served as advisor with Mr. J. D. Patton, Kiwanis advisor. Bill Marmon was president; Bucky Pritchard, vice-president; Tom Ranson, treasurer; and John Schuster, secretary.

FOLDING THE STATE FLAG, Barry Fratkin and Ben Blanton complete their week of flag duty, a traditional Key Club service.

Hi-Y horseys delight orphans at Christmas party

"Giddey-up, horsey!" shouted a five year old towhead as he dug his heels into the ribs of his Hi-Y steed. The boys, together with Y-Teens Triangle II, gave the energetic youngsters of the Methodist Home a Christmas party, complete with gifts, refreshments, and Fred Rose as Santa Claus. That night the boys, weary but always ready for a party, met at the home of president Randy Trow where a blazing fire and hot cider greeted them.

Other Christmas projects included a collection of clothing for families in the Kentucky mountain regions. Joining the Key Club the boys also sponsored a toys for tots campaign.

Early one fall Saturday morning, Hi-Y members appeared at DSF with brushes and gray paint to cover the chipping paint of the football concession stand with a new coat of blue and gray. During football season Hi-Y boys appeared at home games selling programs.

Traditional to the Hi-Y was the presentation of food baskets at the Thanksgiving assembly. The baskets go each year to Sheltering Arms Hospital. The supper dance party at Camp Richmond, YMCA affiliated camp in Charles City County, has become a social tradition.

Mr. Jack Harvie, YMCA Secretary for the Richmond area, and Dr. George Ritchie, Richmond physician and youth leader, were two guest speakers of the Hi-Y.

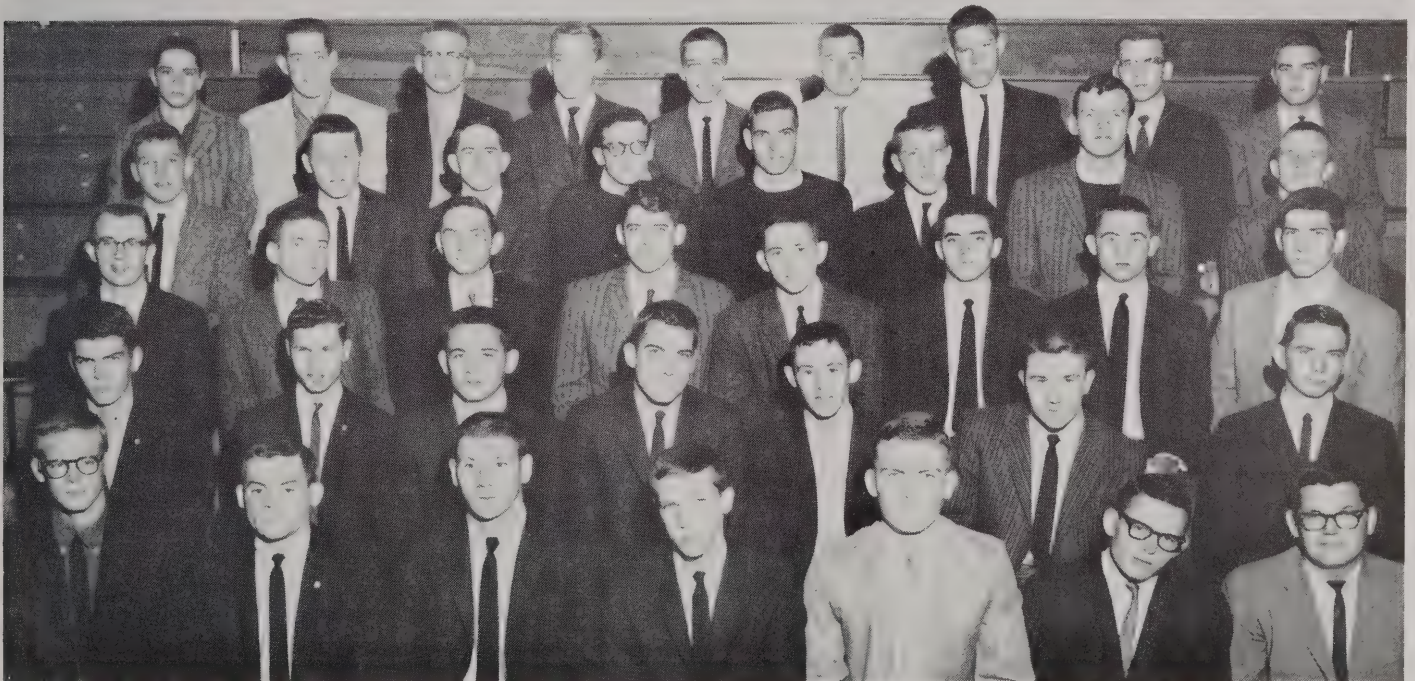

Mr. Harvey Lowder was club advisor. Randy Trow served as president; Bill Chapman, vice-president; Ambler Gilmore, secretary; Jimmy Massie, treasurer.

Girls' Chorus sings in Easter sunrise service

On one of Richmond's most beautiful Easter Sundays, the members of DSF's Girls' Chorus were out at dawn to join choirs of the Richmond Federated Music Clubs in the sunrise service at Westhampton Memorial Park. The moving beauty of the music and the inspiration of the service helped to make Easter 1960 a memorable one for all the girls.

The group met daily as a regularly scheduled class in the school's music department. During the first semester they had a student director several days each week. Miss Jane Larson, music student at Richmond Professional Institute, practiced conducting techniques in sessions with the singers.

Throughout the year, the girls found the class an enjoyable break in the day, with director Hunter Purdie's amusing interpretations of the lunch menu on the daily absentee sheet and his exaggerated conducting antics adding to the fun of singing music they liked.

On Homecoming night, tiny Eileen Howe represented the class as the school's smallest princess.

This year for the first time, the glee club elected officers. Pam Coddington directed club business, assisted by vice-president Annette Frischkorn and secretary Faye Carter.

Drenched Downbeats sing on Youth Parade

"Shhh! You're on the air!" whispered an exasperated broadcaster of WRNL's Youth Parade to eight Downbeats as they struggled out of raincoats, scarves and boots. Delayed by the weather and heavy traffic, the triple trio minus one tramped into the studio just as the program began. Carolyn Powell, who drove, never found a parking place but circled the block several times, listening to the others on her car radio.

Dressed in bright new outfits of fire-engine red vests and pleated skirts of red and beige plaid, the Downbeats rode onto the track at Homecoming in a white convertible trimmed with paper doll replicas of themselves. Other activities this year included entertainment for the Crippled Children's Hospital, the Home for Incurables, the West End Kiwanis Club, and the FBLA Convention at Fredericksburg.

Under the direction of Miss Dorothea Moore, the Downbeats held weekly practice sessions on Wednesdays to discuss new music and rehearse for engagements. Officers for this year were Carolyn Saunders, president, and Martha Atkinson, secretary-treasurer.

The haunting beauty of "The Little Drummer Boy" went with the Glee Club through an unusually busy Christmas season. WRNL broadcast their carol concert from the Central National Bank as a part of a series of Christmas programs from the downtown location. Earlier the group sang for the students at Tuckahoe Junior High School. The week of pre-holiday activity ended with the Christmas assemblies and the traditional caroling in the halls.

Wearing their blue robes, the Glee Club also participated in the annual Thanksgiving assembly. In January they sang for a Sunday evening service at the First Baptist Church. Early risers heard them in the Easter sunrise service at Westhampton Memorial Park.

A selected group participated in the 120-member All-State chorus held at DSF January 20-21 and directed by Dr. Randall Thompson, noted American composer and professor of music at Harvard. Twenty-four Virginia schools were represented in the chorus, which presented a concluding concert on Sunday afternoon. The major work performed was Dr. Thompson's "Frostiana," a setting for seven of Robert Frost's poems, which was given its second public performance at the All-State Concert.

With spring came another colorful musical production. The cast enacted several scenes from the Broadway musical "South Pacific," complete with songs and island costumes. Although leads were open to the school, members of the chorus were selected from the Glee Club and the Girl's Chorus. The cast, under the direction of Mr. Hunter Purdie and Miss Jeanne Saunders, included Harriett Dunn as Nellie; Bill Sheldon, Emile; Southall Stone, Bloody Mary; Bobby Kidd, Lt. Cabell; Randy Dillard, Liat; Charles Bean, Luther Billis; Diane Miller and Wilbur Hatcher, the planter's children; and Crystal Winston, Penny Sanford, and Kay Harrold, nurses.

The singers were directed in all rehearsals and performances by Mr. Purdie. Officers were Rick Seume, president; Mike Caver, vice-president; and Martha Atkinson, secretary-treasurer.

Band marches with Safety Patrols in parade

Although their days as traffic monitors were far behind, the band and majorettes went to Washington on May 14 to march in the National Safety Patrol Parade.

Their chilling Rebel yell and "Dixie" became a spark that fired Rebel spirit during football season. Majorettes performed before gridiron audiences throughout the season at DSF games and at halftime of the Thanksgiving Day game at City Stadium.

At the Central District Festival in April, the band was rated excellent by the judges. Thirteen players represented DSF in the All-State Band. On April 29-30 they played the music of South Pacific for the annual spring music production.

Band officers were Bobby Kidd, president; Herb Sanborn, vice-president; and Jay Robinson, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Hunter Purdie was director.

Sheldon is national winner in quiz contest

Is photography art? Like Virginia Museum patrons, DFS students had an opportunity to answer this question for themselves when the Quill and Scroll brought the Eastman Kodak High School Photo Contest display of award-winning snapshots to the school library.

Hoping that the rain would not postpone Homecoming, Sara Page Cosby, David Forsythe, and advisor Miss Carol Jones spent hectic hours stuffing white napkins into badminton nets and covering the convertible with clear plastic. When the postponement announcement came, they carefully stored the decorations in Carolyn Powell's garage, only to have her dog sleep on them.

In March, with the cooperation of the social studies department, the Quill and Scroll participated in the Current Events Quiz. Senior Bill Sheldon learned in April that he was DSF's first national winner in the annual contest.

The Quill and Scroll again sponsored the school's largest banquet, which featured Guy Friddell of the Richmond News Leader as guest speaker. The traditional tapping concluded the evening.

Miss Jones and Miss Dorothea Moore called the first meeting of the year, at which Sara Page Cosby was elected president and Lynda Gunther secretary-treasurer.

More than ever before, 1959-60 was the year of the big news break for the Commentator. The story of the year unfolded for the more than 700 regular subscribers to the tri-weekly in a series of exclusives revealing everything from the new comprehensive state testing program to the announcement to the school of mechanical drawing teacher Henry Wheeler's engagement.

The paper carried page one stories revealing new publications editors as well as winners of Who's Who and SCA elections. Controversial editorials by editor-in-chief Bill Mears commanded high reader interest. Seniors particularly enjoyed Bill Sheldon's column, "a word or two," which defined the upperclassman's view of school controversy, academic problems, and senior fads.

The Commentator kept abreast of politics in this election year by conducting a poll to learn the political views of DSF students. In January Rebel opinion named Richard Nixon the next president and Adlai Stevenson the possible candidate least desired in the White House. Most students felt civil rights would be an important factor in the election.

Added to the Commentator calendar were two record hops, sponsored by the journalism class after the Lane game, January 8, and the Manchester game, February 19. The newspaper joined the yearbook as a member of the National Scholastic Press Association in the fall.

and Miss Carolyn Baker represented the Commentator staff at the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Convention in New York City. Representatives also went to the Southern Interscholastic Press Association Convention held in Lexington in late April. The paper again received top ratings.

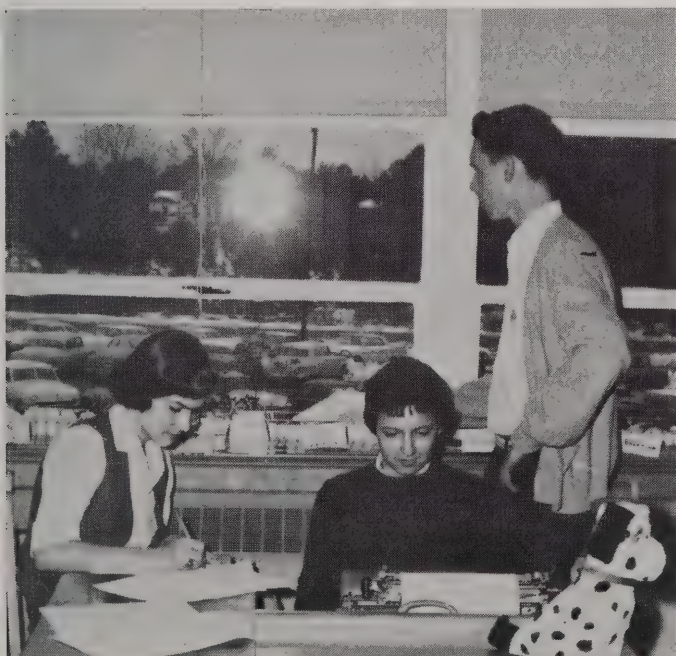

In November staff members attended Press Day, a newspaper clinic sponsored by Richmond Newspapers, Incorporated. Held at Thomas Jefferson High School, it provided classes and short courses in every phase of newspaper work. The courses also introduced new techniques of production.

The Cubs, sponsored by Mrs. Kathleen Mears, had duties of their own. They again wrote a column called "The Cubboard," which included amusing school anecdotes, jokes, and daffynitions. This year they completely replaced the out-dated DSF directory with a newly-published 1960 edition. At the 1959 Publications Banquet, Agnes Brown won the stuffed bear awarded each year to the Best Cub.

The advertising staff worked steadily from late summer until the final issue of the paper went to press. Linda Griffin and Lynda Gunther headed the business and advertising staffs. The ten regular issues were supplemented by a promotional extra in September and the Cubs' surprise extra in April.

Experts' advice increases yearbook efficiency

Emphasizing "Get organized and get organized early," the HISTORIAN staff had the 1960 book in full swing when school started. The long-awaited June product had its beginnings at an editorial staff meeting at Kristy Knapp's house in late July. As summer school drew to a close, staff members met at the drugstore during the break to arrange the trip to Washington for the NSPA Convention in August.

There leading journalist and scholastic publications expert Glenn Hanson lunched with the DSF delegation and gave a page-by-page criticism of the '59 book. His enthusiastic analysis, coupled with the spirit of the convention, provided the spark for the coming year.

Late September brought the school photographer. Without interrupting classes, the staff shuttled 800 students through the auditorium and past the photographer at the rate of two a minute. On November 2 and 3, the staff arranged 40 club group shots.

Editors planned their sections and drew layouts while they constantly kept a lookout for good pictures. Jim Hatchett, staff photographer, roved the halls fifth and sixth periods, snapping away.

With the help of Tom McConnell of Kingskraft, who made a special trip to DSF from Kingsport, Tennessee, the staff approved the cover only after many letters to and from Kingsport. Tom's remark of, "Yes siree, Bob-tail, I think we've got it," wrapped up cover plans.

In January the big push for copy started, and editors and staff worked steadily during and after school to meet the deadline. Saturdays, holidays, and snow-days were ideal for writing. Editors and Miss Carol Jones even worked on copy at halftime of basketball games.

Gusty March winds brought unexpected snow, closing school for four days and delighting most DSF students. But to the yearbook staff, the news brought early-morning calls which turned sleighing plans into picture cropping and copy editing.

In mid-March, Miss Jones and seniors Jay Johnston, Kristy Knapp, and Barry Fratkin, headed for New York to attend the CSPA Convention. Miss Marian Breeden and rising seniors, Linda Basheer, Judy Sutherland, Bob Fleet, Betty Beale, and Dave Fahy went to Lexington in April for the Southern Interscholastic Press Association Convention. The DSF delegates again took over the front row of Dr. Regis L. Boyle's yearbook short course.

Although the NSPA awarded the HISTORIAN an All-American rating and CSPA a Medalist for the second consecutive year, the staff was aware of the danger of the book's becoming stereotyped. Working constantly to improve, they used the convention judges' critiques as study guides. Three textbooks were added to the HISTORIAN library, School Yearbook Editing and Management, and Yearbook Layout by C. J. Medlin and Benjamin Allnutt's Practical Yearbook Procedure which included photos by Jim Hatchett as illustrations. An Army field desk, new tables, and even more pica rulers for the staff room increased efficiency. The school dark room in the physics lab was used for the first time this year.

Instead of being assigned to a single section, new staff members formed a flying squad of assistants who gained experience through work in every section as they were needed. Adding to the book's new look were pictorial advertisements, group pictures of faculty members rather than the traditional formal portraits, and a general index appearing at the end of the book, replacing the separate student and organizations listings found in the 1959 HISTORIAN.

HAVE YOU EVER NOTICED in the team locker room heaps of clothes under empty hooks? Have you smelled the pungent odor of analgesic balm in the training room? Or has the manager trapped you with his yards and yards of tape? The player knows this side of athletics, but he doesn't realize what goes on among the spectators. The stands tremble with people . . . yelling, jumping, stomping. Have you ever watched faces during moments tense or triumphant? Have you ever tingled with pride when the hero of the game was mobbed by on-rushers and heaved to their shoulders? Have you discovered the gym, empty except for a coach talking to a discouraged player? . . .

HOW WELL DO YOU KNOW ATHLETICS?

AFTER SUFFERING a bone separation on the opening kick-off of the Petersburg game, veteran left end John Campbell leaves the field, assisted by Coach Jon Massello. Frustration marks the faces of head coach Bill Long and line coach Ray Long.

Coaches split assignments among major sports

BEFORE HEADING OUTSIDE to put the spring sports candidates through their paces, Ray Long checks with Bill Clark and Fred Wells on his varsity baseball practice schedule.

1959 marked the first major turnover in the head coaching positions since DSF's opening in 1954, although the changes had been considered in previous years. Two major factors caused the final decision. Since the athletic seasons overlap, the head coach often had insufficient time to prepare for the oncoming season. Also with more than 200 different boys participating in the athletic program, there has been an increasing need for the time-consuming teaching of fundamentals.

To give the necessary time to each sport, the head coaching positions were divided among the veteran mentors Bill Long, Jon Massello, and Ray Long. Bill Long retained the top spot in football and track, while Massello took the helm as basketball chief. Ray Long, head wrestling coach, assumed the top baseball post in the spot vacated by Massello. Rounding out the DSF male coaching staff, Fred Wells held the reins for JV football, JV basketball and golf, while Bill Clark coached both the indoor and outdoor track squads. Wells was also the head scout during the football-basketball season. Don Garber coached tennis.

The newest addition to the athletic department, Miss Peggy Dulin, led the girls' basketball team to a surprising 6-6 season, a marked improvement over last year's 1-9 record.

Included in the coaches' schedules were travel excursions to Lexington, Washington, D. C., and Atlantic City for coaching clinics. The College All-Star game topped off a successful week-end at the August 1-3 clinic in Chicago.

Besides coaching all athletic activities, directing physical education, and teaching math and chemistry, the coaches gave time to some less publicized matters. At the close of football season the coaches held the annual football banquet. There players and parents were treated to steak dinners. Through the efforts of the department and Mr. J. D. Patton, the Rebel Booster Club was reorganized after a period of dormancy. The newly elected president for 1960 was Mr. W. G. McClure, Jr.

Two other important non-athletic events that affected coaches Wells and Massello this year were the arrivals of baby boys in both households.

OUTLINED BY THE ARENA'S mellow lighting, athletic director W. E. Long and three Rebel subs, Tim Sheldon, Bill Jones, and George Matuck, stare as if hypnotized by the action in the Rebs' upset victory over Petersburg at the Central District Tournament.

SLASHING THROUGH A HOLE in the Teejay defense, Bucky Pritchard begins a 28-yard TD jaunt against the Presidents. Seemingly boxed in by Bill Bailey (42) and John Capehart (1), he dashed through the outstretched arms of four Teejay defenders to score the Rebs' only tally in their initial skirmish with the Jeffs. David Elmes (55), Blue and Gray center, trails the play.

Injury plagued Rebs drop five games by one TD

Plagued by the worst series of injuries in the school's history, the 1959 gridders won two games against a schedule of nine Group I opponents. From the backfield that started the season, Tommy Ranson, Bucky Pritchard, Frank Bowman, and Jay Johnston, only Johnston was left to face Petersburg in the final game.

Despite the record, the Rebs played outstanding ball in all but two games, five of the seven losses coming by one touchdown or less. The All-Metro squad, selected by area coaches, named co-captain and tackle Bill Wood and halfback Bucky Pritchard to the second team while guard Jay Cox received third team honors.

MANCHESTER SEPTEMBER 19 0-32

The Blue and Gray opened their second year in Group I with a disappointing 32-0 loss to Manchester. Behind 13-0 at halftime, the Rebels could not stop the second-half Lancer onslaught led by All-State quarterback Butch Nunnally and 210-pound halfback Buddy South. Junior halfback Bucky Pritchard's 50-yard scoring jaunt in the final minutes was nullified, the first of three Pritchard TD's called back during the season.

HERMITAGE SEPTEMBER 25 0-6

Determined not to repeat the previous week's performance, a fired-up eleven met Hermitage at Parker Field. The Rebs dominated the entire game, sweeping inside the Panther 10-yard line three times, only to be thwarted at the goal line. Although the Blue and Gray held Hermitage to a meager twenty yards' total offense during the first half, the favored Panther eleven finally managed to roll into Rebel territory in the waning moments of the game and scored with less than a minute to play. End John Campbell led the team's vicious defensive performance in the losing stand.

THOMAS JEFFERSON OCTOBER 3 6-14

The eagerly awaited first gridiron clash with Tee Jay was a disappointment to Rebel partisans as the Jeffs thumped DSF, 14-6. The Jeffs scored twice before Bucky Pritchard dashed 28 yards off right tackle for the lone Rebel marker. Three times during a frustrating second half the Douglas Freeman defensive unit held the Jeffs inside the 10-yard line, but the offense, operating without pile-driving fullback Tommy Ranson, could not close the eight point gap.

ALBEMARLE OCTOBER 16 13-0

"Victory Week!" was the battle cry during practice for the Albemarle game. Victory Week it was as the gridders left Charlottesville with their first win, 13-0. After bulleting a 22-yard pass to Tommy Ragland, quarterback Jay Johnston sneaked into the end zone for the first TD. John Campbell snagged another perfect aerial in the fourth quarter to put the ball on the one-yard line, where Jim Massie cracked over for the final six points. Junior halfback John Bowden started in place of the injured Frank Bowman, and promptly became the Rebs' leading ground gainer. Pritchard had another score nullified in the third quarter when a 41-yard TD pass from Johnston was called back for an offsidess infraction.

JOHN MARSHALL OCTOBER 23 13-0

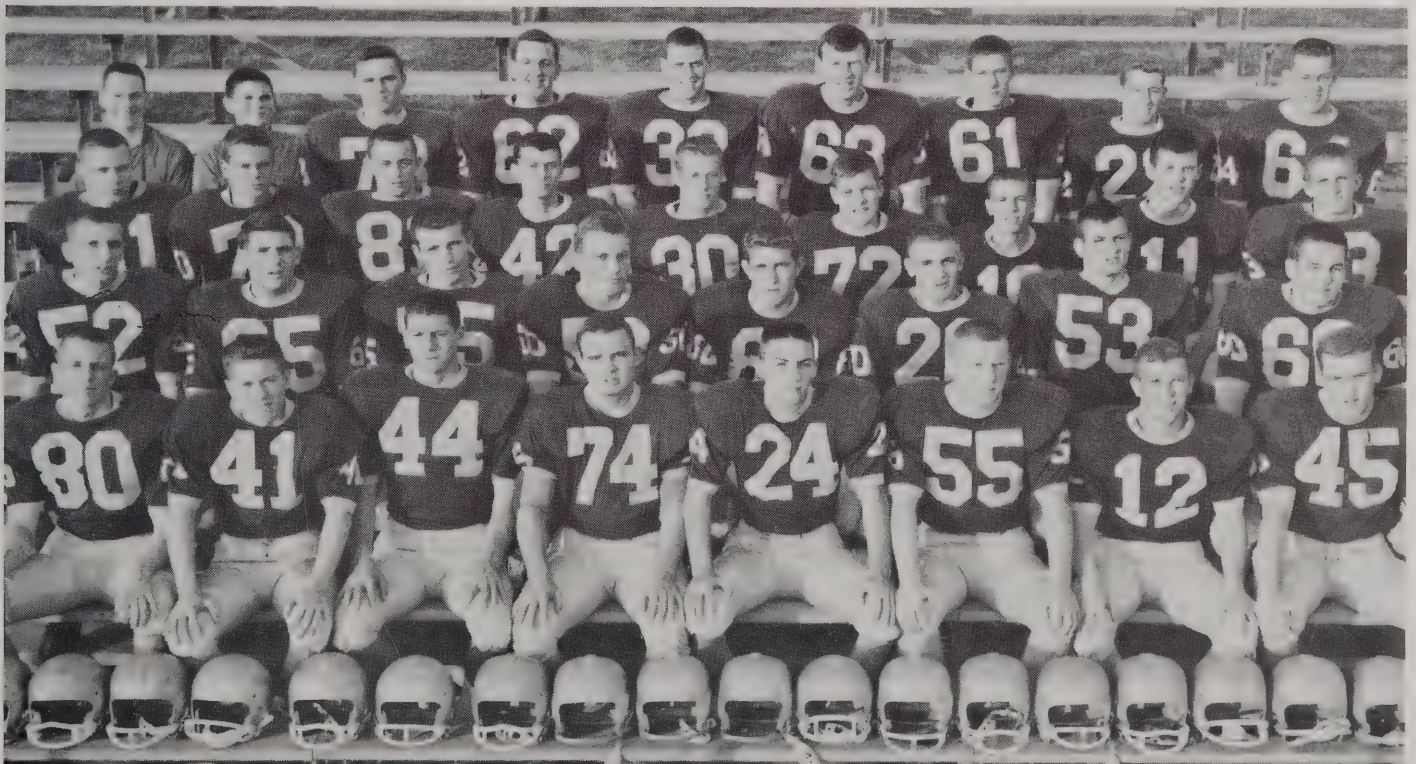

The Rebels returned to Parker Field and the Justices, eager to rack up another victory. The team grabbed a quick 13-0 lead on touchdowns by halfback John Bowden and quarterback Jay Johnston. For the third time during the season Pritchard saw his scoring nullified, this time a 23-yard ramble on a cross-buck. Offensively the game was one of DSF's best, but it was the defense, spearheaded by linebackers Jay Cox and Phil Stone, that sparked the Rebs, checking the Justices on the Blue and Gray three-yard line to stop their only threat.

THOMAS DALE OCTOBER 29 13-19

Thomas Dale abruptly ended the gridders' two game victory skein with a one touchdown victory. Down 6-13 at halftime, a fired-up Rebel team came back in the second half to score on a deceptively executed 28-yard TD pass play from Johnston to end Tommy Ragland, but the Knights struck back with a 56-yard drive for the winning score. A stalwart Blue and Gray line stopped All-Central halfback Wally Davenport three times for no gain before he cracked over for the deciding marker from six inches out.

LANE NOVEMBER 9 12-13

After a weekend of torrential rains and two postponements, the Rebs met Lane on Monday night in their lone appearance at the DSF stadium. Bucky Pritchard sprinted 27 yards for the first score of the Homecoming tilt. Bowden drove to the six-inch line on the last play of the first half, but the clock stopped the Rebels short of paydirt. Carrying again, in the third quarter he bowled over for the second DSF touchdown. However, the Black Knights also scored once in each half to maintain a one-point lead. With only 28 seconds left in the game, Black Knight end Tommy Phillips broke through to block Pritchard's 13-yard field goal attempt, and the squad left the field with their fourth one touchdown loss.

HIGHLAND SPRINGS NOVEMBER 13 6-20

On Friday the thirteenth the team traveled to Highland Springs for their second game in five days. Quickly falling behind 13-0, DSF desperately fought to overcome the favored Springers. Misfortune beset the Rebels early in the game when Pritchard broke his collarbone, but he returned to catch a 12-yard aerial from Johnston on the last play of the first half for the Rebs' only tally. Bill Wood, relieving Pritchard of his punting chores, averaged almost fifty yards with his booming spirals.

PETERSBURG NOVEMBER 20 12-13

The Rebels dominated the first half but were unable to stop the Wave's big ground gainer Earl Hawkins, who thundered around the Blue and Gray right side for both Crimson tallies. The first DSF score came when fullback Jim Massie, whose blockbusting performance led the offensive attack, bulled over from one yard out. Following the Wave's second TD, scatback Bob Duggan took the kickoff and scampered 85 yards for the Rebs' second score. The conversion fell short and the gridders finished the season with their second one-point loss.

TURNING THE CORNER, Lewis Shewmake (4) moves in to help quarterback Jimmy Buchanan (20) as he scampers toward the Thomas Dale line. The game was the second of two home night games and was the Rebs' only victory.

JV's suffer first losing season in two years

For the first time in two years, the Douglas Freeman Junior Varsity posted a losing ledger. Despite the capable coaching of Fred Wells, the inexperienced gridders struggled vainly for one victory out of seven attempts.

Opening the season on a rain-soaked Byrd Park field, the baby Rebels went down to Benedictine in a stand-off dual, 0-6. In their next encounters the outclassed Rebs dropped games to Thomas Jefferson, 7-33, Manchester, 0-13, and Highland Springs, 0-45.

The Rebels' lone victory over Thomas Dale, 12-0, was a spectacular follow-up of their shellacking by the Springs, but the gridders remained subdued in their sixth contest, losing to St. Christopher's Bulldogs, 7-39. Their best effort, however, was a heartbreaking 6-12 defeat by Petersburg which saw the Rebs on their opponents' four-yard line, only to have their spirited drive snuffed out by the end of the first half.

Powerdriving fullback Charlie Saunders, fleet-footed half-back Lewis Shewmake, and staunch guard Penn Lemmonds were the tri-captains for the '59 gridders. Shewmake and half-back Bob Mahone sparked the offense with excellent broken-field running while line-backer Lemmonds was the backbone of the junior varsity defensive squad.

Sixth-seeded Rebs place third in tourney

With only four lettermen returning, the DSF varsity five experienced their first losing season since the 1956 campaign, compiling a 7-10 regular season record and 9-11 overall ledger.

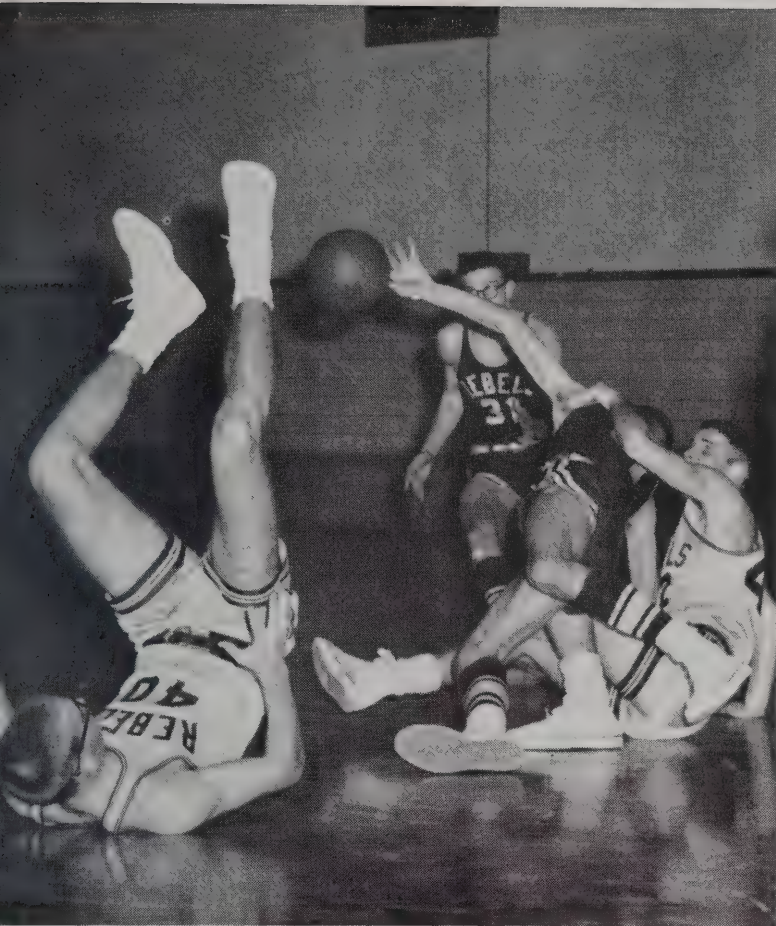

The hot and cold Rebels dropped their first two pre-Christmas games, but with the return of 6'3" Bill Marmon, out earlier with an ankle injury, the revamped cagers bounced back to defeat Thomas Dale and Lane. On home ground against Hopewell, January 12, the Rebels played probably their best game of the year in a losing effort. A twelve-point lead vanished in the last five minutes before a brilliant Hopewell rally.

After splitting their next two contests, the hoopsters met arch-rival Teejay. The fast-breaking Jeffs were heavy favorites, but the cool-minded Rebs threw up what became the controversial "deep freeze." The outraged Beltliners scored only 18 points, but it was one too many as the strategy back-fired. At one time the Rebs, amidst choruses of "Mickey Mouse" from Teejay fans, held the ball for six and a half minutes without taking a shot.

After the exam break the Rebels edged Manchester twice, and Lane and Hermitage again. In the rematch with Teejay before an overflow crowd, the Rebs never got a chance to freeze and fell to the sizzling Jeffs.

BILL MARMON (50) fires a two-handed jump shot over a straining Craig Connelly of Hopewell. Jim Massie (44) slips in behind Marmon to follow the shot for a possible rebound.

THE REBS' PRESEASON INTERSQUAD SCRIMMAGE contained as much action as any regular season game. Here the Blues' David Forsythe tries to flip the ball away from a prostrate Tommy Dew before falling on the Grays' Stan Hughes.

Co-captains Andy Brown and David Forsythe, a deadly duo from outside, averaged over half of the team's 46.5 points per game. With his 14.5 average, Forsythe ranked among the top five Metro scorers. Switching from guard to forward throughout the season, he relied mainly on a one-handed jumper but kept the opposition off-balance with deceptive right and left-handed drive-ins. Bespectacled Brown's high arching shots and dazzling lay-ups provided glamor for the DSF offense.

John Campbell, a six-foot giant under the boards, teamed with muscular Jim Massie to dominate the team's rebounding. Bill Marmon, George Matuck, and Bill McClure all started intermittently during the season. Coach Jon Massello experimented frequently to find a winning combination. Stanley Hughes, Bill Jones, Steve Greenberg, and Don Rawlings saw late-game action in preparation for next season.

Swirling snow and freezing weather prevailed outside the Arena while Rebel partisans gathered inside to watch the DSF-Petersburg clash. The Crimson Wave may have thought they were on the outside as they ran up against the highly-publicized Rebel freeze. Playing near-flawless possession basketball, the DSF quintet pulled the only major upset of the Central District Tournament to down Bill Burton and crew, 40-39. Forsythe's fantastic six for seven field goal shooting and Campbell's bottling-up of Burton were the major factors in the Rebs' first tourney win. The sixth-seeded quintet finished third in the tourney after outclassing Hopewell in the consolation game. The slim sharpshooter Forsythe landed a first team tourney spot, and John Campbell received second-team honors.

JV hoopsters compile best record in 4 years

With a fast, hard-hitting first string quintet and an equally formidable second team, the 1960 junior cagers swept through the Central District, winning ten of their seventeen contests. Bill Long, after five years as varsity basketball coach, directed the hoopsters in one of the most successful seasons in Douglas Freeman's JV competition. The Rebels combined their individual ability with teamwork to produce a squad comparable to the famed 1956 JV team, which in '58 captured the District 2 cage championship.

Frank Bowman, with a 143-point total, and Roger Walton, who netted 89, were the leading scorers of the fast-breaking Rebel offense. Ricky Goodwin, Clarence Strickland and 6'4" Lindley Smith, who hauled down a season's total of 108 rebounds, provided the height to sweep the boards. At the forward slots Willy Maples and Bob Ackerly were effective on the boards as well as from the floor to give the Rebels an additional punch. Jack Frazee and Richard Jainchell added depth to the well-balanced squad.

Because of their good season and high promise as varsity prospects a number of the boys participated in a special post-season coaching program. During this period the Jayvees practiced with the varsity at the pre-tournament workouts and picked up a great deal of experience in varsity drills.

LYNDA WALKER GIVES two Highland Springs defenders a taste of her deadly shooting, as she fires a one-handed push shot. Julie Martin wheels to follow behind the high-scoring ace.

After a 1-9 season the previous year, the 59-60 girls' basketball team used a strong finish to compile a 6-6 record. Although they got off to a poor start, the persistent cagers climbed out of their losing rut at mid-season to sweep four of their last five encounters.

In their opening game the Rebelettes stormed past Thomas Dale to the tune of 41-29. By mid-season, however, the record stood at 2-5 with a gloomy outlook of five difficult remaining battles. In their remarkable rally they toppled Varina, who had previously defeated them, trounced for the second time Thomas Dale and Highland Springs, and ended the season by upending the Westhampton College freshmen in a thrilling 55-45 victory.

The big gun for the feminine cagers was Lynda Walker, "A" honor roll student from Ohio. Lynda piled up a 21.8 average for the 12-game schedule to top all scorers on both the girls' and boys' squads. Her 261-point total was over half the output of the team.

Seniors dominated this year's varsity squad, holding five of the six starting positions. Beverly Smith and Julie Martin, both lettering veterans, provided the offense with power to balance Lynda's average. Lynda Gunther, the other co-captain and a two-year ace, led the defensive brigade. At the guard spots along with Lynda were Margie Goerner and the lone junior, Cynthia Bothwell.

This year's JV posted a 4-4 ledger. Sophomores Barbara Valentine and Betsy Garber were the pace-setters for the 1960 junior six.

PLANNING THE WEEKEND skiing party for senior girls, Miss Peggy Dulin and Miss Foncie Lawrence excitedly pore over a map as they discuss the tentative route to Davis, West Virginia.

TOMMY CHAPMAN strains on tiptoe as he lifts Al Abel of VSDB into the air for a slamming takedown and two points. Chapman went on to take the match with a pin in the third period.

The 1960 Rebel grapplers raced through a schedule of nine dual meets, dropping one decision to Northern District behemoth, Wakefield. In between double victories over Thomas Dale and Saint Christopher's, the Rebs steamrolled Prince George and for the first time decisioned the Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind. The high point of the season was the weekend of January 15 when the Rebs took on Jefferson Senior and William Fleming, both Western District standouts, on successive nights. The grapplers broke loose with an amazing display of strength to smash both opponents.

The Rebs needed a peak effort from every man, however, to nip Saint Christopher's in the Metropolitan Tournament. The wrestlers rolled up 103 points but barely edged the Saints, who finished a close second with 99.

After wrapping up the Metro title, the Blue and Gray left for Norfolk and the State Tournament. Competition here stiffened greatly, and the Rebs could compile only 12 points for a 10th place finish. Tommy Chapman and Stuart Clough both worked their way up to fourth places in the State to account for 10 of the team's 12 points.

Despite the winning ledger, the Reb squad boasted only five senior regulars. Co-captains Tommy Grant and Terry Kinum completed four years of interscholastic competition with outstanding individual records. Jim King, 175-pound transfer from Minnesota, lost only twice and was a tremendous spectator attraction with his colorful antics on the mat.

Wilburn Hatcher, 95-pound sophomore ace, and junior Tommy Chapman were the leading point producers for the year with 49 and 42 points, respectively. These boys, along with juniors Phil Stone, Stuart Clough, and Peter Tribble, accounted for enough points to provide a solid nucleus for the '61 campaign.

Harriers triumph in second undefeated season

STRAIN SHOWING on his face, Reb track star John Irby strides in for first place in the 880-yard run. Irby, who also excelled in the 440 and mile runs, was the state's most outstanding half-miler.

The 1959 Douglas-Freeman track squad, with the Rebs' strongest array of cinder talent, swept through a season of dual meets undefeated for the second year in a row. In the rugged Tidewater Meet, only Eastern District powerhouses Newport News and Warwick finished ahead of the Rebels. The twenty points that the harriers compiled was considered the team's strongest effort in a year of outstanding performances.

The only team to push the thinclads in dual meets was Saint Christopher's. However, the Rebel relay team repeated its stirring clutch performance of the previous year to down the Saints by a 59-54 margin.

Senior co-captains Tommy Griggs and John Irby were individual greats, but sophomore Bucky Pritchard, excelling in five events, was the top point producer. A junior in his first year of competition, Jim Reid smashed the high jump standard with a leap of 5'9½" against Manchester.

The mighty "Horse" Griggs, a Rebel athletic whiz for five years, consistently took firsts in both weight events, and in the Central District Meet he shattered the fifty-foot barrier in the shot put with a tremendous heave of 51'57/8", to set a new school record.

During Irby's final two years of interscholastic competition, he established a reputation as the area's most outstanding middle-distance runner in recent years. After his sophomore year he lost only one race, and at his graduation he held three school records and a share of a fourth. As a climax to his brilliant high school career, Irby received a full track scholarship to the University of Maryland.

Facing the new challenge of a Group I schedule, the Douglas Freeman baseball team was unable to muster the needed spark for a respectable record. Late game fadeouts doomed the DSF glovemen to a 3-8 Group I record and a 4-9 overall tally.

Inconsistent in most aspects of the sport, the Rebels made costly mistakes at the plate and in the field. However, they did pull surprise victories over Manchester, Highland Springs, and Hermitage.

After frustrating losses to John Marshall and Hermitage, the Rebels notched their first victory in a 10-5 slugfest at Manchester. St. Christopher's became the second victim of DSF, 2-0, after the rout by Petersburg. This early season inconsistency was characteristic of the entire year.

The pitching staff, led by the threat of Jim Massie and relief artist Archie Yeatts, lacked the depth necessary to offset the weak offense. The only Rebel wins were hung up by Massie, who closed the season with a break-even 4-4 ledger.

An inability to group hits proved fatal to the Douglas Freeman squad. Bo Johnson, Buddy Hopkins, and Bobby Holland paced the spasmodic attack. Johnson's performance in center field won him All-District and All-Metro laurels.

Douglas Freeman fans hoped that the experience, skill, and confidence gained in the '59 season would pay off with more success for the 1960 team.

Cheerers lead way to sportsmanship trophy

PART OF THE REBEL CHORUS LINE of singing cheerleaders, Mary Jo Gee, Lora Gill, and Dodie Benson, swing with Mr. Purdie, the band, and "Dixie" during the spirited Teejay pep rally.

Using a cheer now well-known to Rebel partisans, "There's a Team That We Know" and a song version of "Take an F," the Rebelettes reached the semi-finals of the 1959 Thalhimers Cheer Rally with ease. Although they were edged out of first place by a peppy Hermitage squad, their fourth consecutive finish in the semi-finals was applauded by a large group of Rebel fans.

Still maintaining their spirited skits during Rebel pep rallies, the cheerleaders sponsored many other activities, including the Homecoming festivities and the ill-fated Homecoming dance. After two postponements because of weather, they finally held the dance one week later, renaming it the "Harvest Hop."

The varsity girls created the miniature gridders and goalposts which appeared on the tables at the football banquet. During the March of Dimes drive, the jayvee cheerleaders gave their traditional assistance to collectors, appearing among the Saturday shoppers downtown.

Senior cheerleaders, along with seniors on the girls' basketball team, took a weekend skiing excursion to the slopes of "Little Switzerland" at Davis, West Virginia. Fortune was with them as a sudden snowstorm caused an unexpected one-day extension of the vacation.

A major achievement of the Rebelettes was the promotion of the growing DSF tradition of outstanding sportsmanship. When the Rebel hoopsters made their dazzling comeback at the Central District Basketball Tournament, they had to share the spotlight with the cheerleaders and students as Douglas Freeman walked

Mears, Baggett retain contact with classroom

"Bullseye!" Students in classrooms in the west wing of the school were astonished when they caught sight of their principal, Mr. W. Howard Mears, practicing on the archery range with the physical education classes. Observing and participating in classes, Mr. Mears expressed his keen interest in the curriculum and the 980 students and 47 teachers involved in a rapidly expanding school program. This year Mr. Mears returned to the classroom as a physics teacher, a new role for him at DSF, which brought him into even closer touch with the faculty and the student body.

Dressed in a bright new sailor dress, Patricia Lynn Baggett, five-year-old daughter of assistant principal, Mr. D. E. Baggett, marched into a DSF basketball game for her first date with Daddy. Students at Douglas Freeman, traditionally a family school, were almost as familiar with Mrs. Baggett, Deb, and Patricia Lynn, as they were with the Mears. Sponsorship of the Key Club gave Mr. Baggett a close relationship with students, who found in him a source of understanding for their personal and academic problems. A former DSF science teacher, he kept up his interest in the activities of the science department by serving as its chairman.

Mr. William E. Long, math teacher and athletic director, assumed some of the multiple duties formerly assigned to the assistant principal, handling attendance and book distribution.

Although few students realized it, the work of the guidance department started in early summer. Receiving transfers, assigning homerooms, and making out schedules were only a part of the work done by Miss Faye Hill and Miss Glasselle Adams prior to the opening of school. The beginning of the school year brought no relief, for schedule adjustments consumed several weeks' work.

To help homeroom teachers give students individual guidance in preparing their high school courses, the department prepared the homeroom teachers' guide. These bulletins familiarized teachers with courses offered and requirements for graduation and for college.

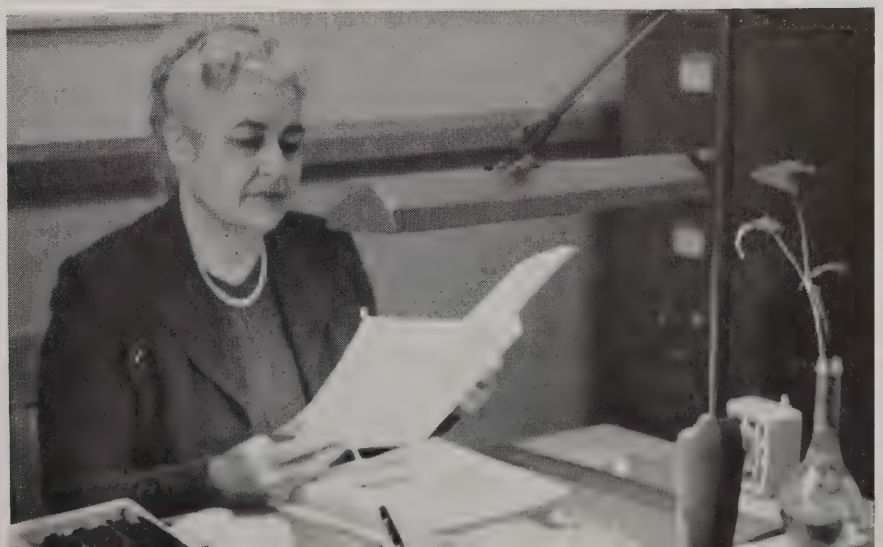

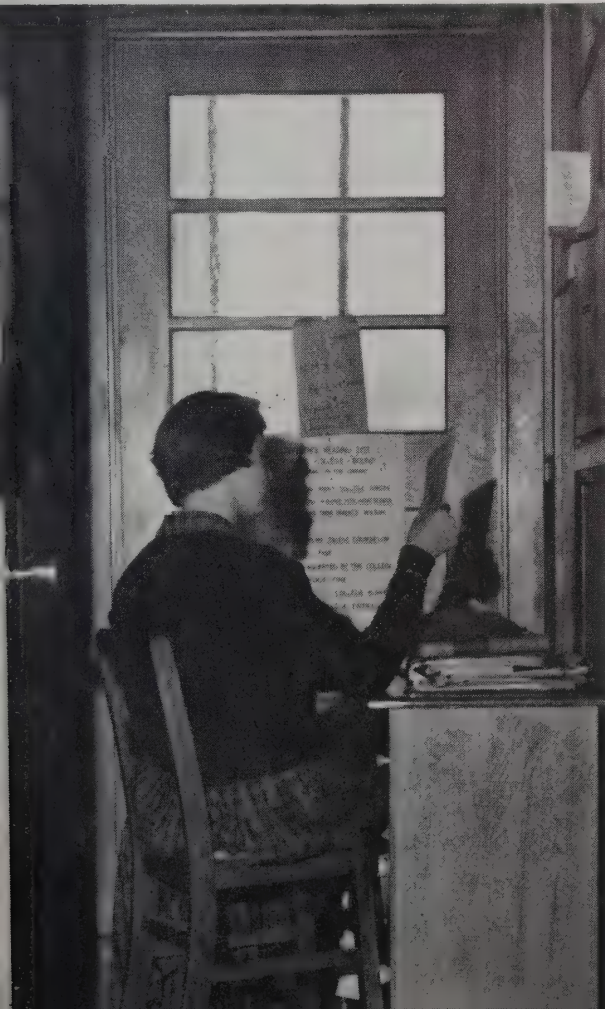

Participating in the statewide testing program in the early fall, the guidance department administered the Sequential Tests of Educational Progress and the School and College Ability Tests. These were important in evaluating DSF's progress in comparison with other schools and in determining the development of individual specific ability in several scholastic areas.

In their dual roles as mothers and staff members, DSF secretaries, Mrs. Virginia Saunders, Mrs. Marguerite Jones, and school nurse Mrs. Jean O'Keefe led busy lives. Secretary to the principal, Mrs. Jones also managed all the school finances and bookkeeping, while trying to remember to address her English teacher daughter formally as "Miss Jones."

Mrs. Saunders, in addition to her duties as school secretary, kept up with the activities of her daughter Carolyn, a senior, and her sophomore son, Charlie. She sent out over 400 transcripts to colleges this year. A new photostat machine, which photographs transcripts for students applying to more than one college, considerably lightened the load, which increases with every senior class.

Amid the perennial student complaints of headaches, sore throats, and upset stomachs, Mrs. Jean O'Keefe moved efficiently about her hospital in miniature, where her son, junior Tim O'Keefe, appeared only occasionally. The majority of Rebel injuries resulted from minor mishaps in gym classes as students became over-enthusiastic in their workouts on the rings, trampoline and other apparatus.

Communication stressed through speech, writing

"Of all the districts, Curriculliput and Themeria seem to be the slowest in progress. The arrival of visitors, particularly the friendly ambassador from Dietziana, results in peculiar behavior patterns among the people." This senior paper on a visit to "Historianland" written in the style of Jonathan Swift for an honors English class, attracted widespread attention from students on both publications staffs.

The assignment was typical of those given in literature classes as theme writing received more emphasis there as well as in grammar-composition classes on all levels, alternate, regular, and honors. Students wrote papers of many types, poems, stories, themes of thought and reflection, fact and information, and experience.

The past year was not one of sweeping changes in the English department, but rather was a year of polishing, improving, and emphasizing. In monthly departmental meetings, English teachers carried on continuing evaluation of their work in the classroom. Placing greater stress on the use of languages for written and spoken communication, they exchanged views on standards for student work and on evaluating student writing, and shared teaching ideas.

"Mumbo jumbo will voodoo you!" chanted the speech class, led by Mrs. Jerry Noland. In an assembly the group surprised Freemanites with a choral reading of "The Congo" by Vachel Lindsay.

During their study of parliamentary procedure, the class formed a mock chapter of Masque and Gavel, a national honorary society which recognizes student achievement in dramatics and speech. Later in the spring an actual chapter was established at Douglas Freeman. Juniors and seniors with averages above 87 who had been outstanding in dramatics or speech activities at DSF were tapped.

The twenty-one member forensic team worked through February and March, selecting material and preparing speeches and readings. The team had four first-place winners in the Central District competition at Manchester: Bill Sheldon, poetry reading; Margaret Cole and Jim Seymore, prose reading; and Bobby Kidd, public speaking. Bill went on to a first place in the state.

The drama class approached play production from every angle. During a study of the history of drama, they enacted scenes from the great plays. Their on-stage experience included the Christmas play and the one-act "So Wonderful in White." Directed by Mrs. Helen Allen, practice teacher from Richmond Professional Institute, they presented in class "If the Shoe Pinches," a comedy. Their critic for this production was Mr. Alton Hodges, director of the drama department at RPI.

Mathematics expansion lessens college load

THE TRIGONOMETRIC FUNCTIONS of $(90 + \theta)$ become vivid on a new blackboard graph to Jim Bjorkholm and Carroll Tew.

635 billion! This was the fantastic answer amazed college algebra students reached when asked by Mrs. Nancy Whitbeck to find the number of possible bridge hands. The study of probability was one of the more fascinating areas of college algebra. This advanced course, available for the second year to accelerated students, better prepared college-bound students in math.

In recent years the mathematics field has so broadened that there is an increasing need to lessen the college load. To meet this need, DSF has added to its mathematics curriculum. Included in the program were two years of algebra; plane, solid, and analytical geometry; trigonometry; and college algebra. Refresher math, general math and advanced arithmetic were also offered to students taking a terminal course.

The department placed emphasis on teaching all students to think quantitatively and systematically for everyday use. Math classes gave every student a working knowledge of math terminology and symbols.

Mrs. Margaretta Stephens, departmental chairman, ordered for classroom use nine blackboard protactors and triangles, two gravity protractors, two blackboard globes, seven wooden compasses, and seven graphs.

To challenge the advanced student and also to better prepare the student not going to college, the department worked toward homogeneous grouping of students.

Pedigo, Mrs. Marguerite Trent, Mr. D. E. Baggett, Mr. Gerald Ezekiel, Mr. Fred Wells.

Science department continues expansion

As the acrid odor of formaldehyde wafted forth from the biology classroom and mingled with the aroma of sulfur fumes from the chemistry lab, students sensed that the scientists of tomorrow had again begun their quest for knowledge. Aspiring sophomores joined in the search and appeared for the first time in the chemistry classes, as the science department continued in the second year of its accelerated program.

New teachers, a greater supply of equipment, an increased enrollment in classes were all a part of the expansion the department underwent this year. The variety of teaching devices used in the classroom reflected the diversity of the science program. Lectures, demonstrations, and lab work were all included in a curriculum that ranged from studying plant reproduction to diagramming the atomic bomb.

The administration began early planning changes for the 1960-1961 session. Biology will be divided into separate semesters of botany and zoology. Chemistry and physics students will be required to submit research projects as a part of the new emphasis on the several scientific competitions. The department also began preparations for a new physical science course, designed to cover the varied fields of physics, chemistry, astronomy, and geology without requiring any more than fundamental math.

Seniors Jay Robinson and Terry Hollett became local winners in the National Science Talent Search Contest, sponsored by the Westinghouse Electric Corporation. The department gave all science students an opportunity to exhibit their projects at the annual school science fair in April. Winners went on to compete in the University of Richmond Science Fair.

ADVANCED CHEMISTRY STUDENT, Dennis Galumbeck, watches for the silver precipitate in a test for hydrogen sulfide. Under the accelerated program, he also took physics as a senior.

Cycling tourists are U.S. history students

Williamsburg inhabitants gaped as they watched a group of students bicycling through the streets of their historic city. The touring cyclists were honors students of Miss Sally Gowan's and Miss Dorothy Jordan's American history classes.

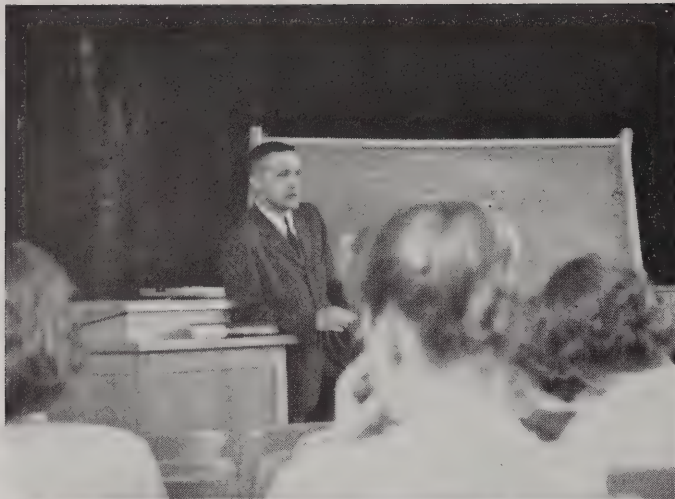

Besides the required work of term papers and parallel reading in honors classes, juniors debated whether the next Chief Executive should be a statesman or a popular leader. In response to Miss Jordan's frequent remark, "Write your congressman," Dave Fahy queried J. Vaughan Gary on the electoral college. His informative reply was used in senior government classes to study the workings of Congress.

Going on the theory of "If you do not like it, start your own," one history class formed its own political party. The new "Mongoose" party drew up a more favorable platform of pep rallies every day, longer vacations, and no homework.

An addition to the department this year was a set of series maps of the world. As the history classes studied the acquisition of each new territory, that section was added to the map.

After hearing a talk on the court system by Mr. William Forrest, attorney at law, Miss Ada Land's sixth period government class held a mock trial.

After-school sessions on current events were innovated by Miss Sally Gowan. Here all classroom formality was dropped to facilitate easier discussion. Bill Sheldon was a national winner in the Quill and Scroll Current Events Contest, given in government classes.

NOT THE STUDENT COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION but the Supreme Court of Appeals is the topic as students listen to Mr. William Forrest's talk on the Virginia Court System. Bottom: During a three-day courtroom struggle in a government class, George Hoffer, portraying a rabbi, testifies for the defendant. Behind attorney Mike Caver and Judge Jay Robinson stands "exhibit A," the swastika taken from the temple door as evidence.

New language lab aids students' pronunciation

"Speak up and learn!" might well have been the rallying cry of language teachers at DSF this year. The department stressed the "aural-oral" method of teaching modern languages, encouraging the student to increase his knowledge and ability to use a foreign language through speaking and listening to the language. Instructors gave more emphasis to oral book reviews, class discussions, speeches, and skits. Four tape recorders and a stereophonic record player were a start on equipment for the language laboratory in room 221.

Beyond the traditional limits of classroom activities, supplementary material and speakers figured prominently in the year's courses. Lars Hartman of Venezuela was one speaker in Spanish classes. German students enjoyed the biographies of Martin Luther, Hans Sachs, and Albrecht Durer in the special text, "Reading German," while French II classes were charmed by "Patapoufs et Filifers," a satire on government.

Following up their study of French artists, students visited art museums in Washington, D. C. Latin students discovered the ancients could be interesting, even exciting, as they translated the works of Ovid and Verres and the speeches of Cicero. The fourth year French class read the works of the great French writers in their literary survey course. After-school French seminars enabled students to further their conversational ability.

A COLORFUL TRAFFIC-STOPPER during the all-school emphasis on languages is put on display in the cafeteria by its creator, Sharon Young.

Art, music classes offer creative outlets

A Sunday afternoon concert in the DSF auditorium carried the audience far up the coast into the New England scene of Robert Frost's poems. Guest director, renowned composer Dr. Randall Thompson, led the 120-member All-State Chorus in the second public performance of his "Frostiana," setting for seven poems by the beloved white-haired poet.

Soft south sea breezes rustled in the leaves of bamboo trees at the two performances of the music department's production, "Adventures in South Pacific." Members of the band, the mixed glee club, and the girls' chorus took part in the musical.

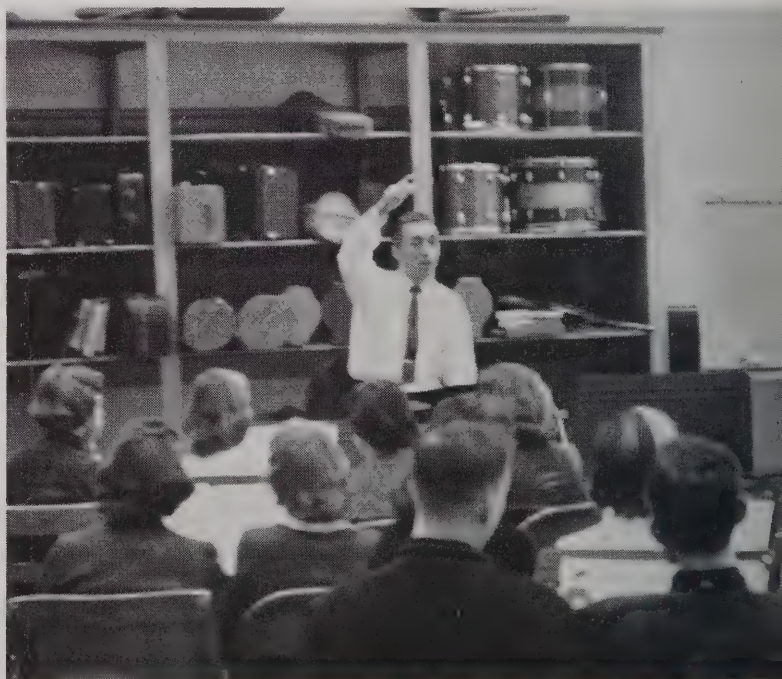

Added to department equipment this year were marching drums and a baritone saxophone. Mr. Purdie looked forward to developing mixed choirs, a concert band, and an orchestra.

The green and orange faces which startled passersby outside the gymnasium in the winter were only character interpretations done in monochromes. Art students displayed their efforts in the front hall during a week-long student exhibit. Beginning in early spring, parents, both professional artists and amateurs, exhibited their works at the invitation of the art department.

First art year students learned the basic principles of art by painting with tempera and water colors, making pottery, and lettering. Those in Art II experimented with the fundamentals of color. Included in the third year was a review of art history from prehistoric times to the present day. Fourth year stressed individuality as students were offered creative opportunities to work in their particular fields of interest.

ART TEACHER, Miss Ellen Copenhaver, selects a marine motif from the department's collection to arrange a still life for her classes.

MR. HUNTER PURDIE sheds his coat for an active session as unseasonably warm weather makes operetta rehearsals difficult.

AT THE PIANO Mr. Purdie studies music for the department's spring production "Adventures in South Pacific." Mr. Purdie scored original arrangements for both the band and the glee club.

Students keep books of fictitious companies

To meet the high standards set by employers in business and the professions, the Business Education Department concentrated on producing well-trained and highly competent students. Besides helping students find employment, the department taught the functions of businesses through keeping records and accounts for fictitious companies.

Commercial students obtained first-hand information about the business world from representatives of local companies who spoke to their classes. They demonstrated what they had learned by preparing and decorating informative classroom bulletin boards with leaflets and other materials obtained from area companies.

While typing students mastered the keyboard, office practice students tangled with the technicalities of filing. The General Business class practiced office etiquette in using the telephone, and bookkeeping classes filled out income tax forms.

In advanced courses, in addition to studying operations of business law and the methods of advertising, students mastered the complicated calculators, electric typewriters and duplicating machines.

A BUSY COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT DUPLICATOR is put in running order by business teachers Mrs. Peggy Rudder, Miss Marian Breeden, and Miss Dorothea Moore.

WITH A CLATTER OF KEYS and tinkle of bells, a typing II class tears into the day's timed writing. From left are Nancy Reynolds, Karen Kooger, Ann Spicer, Connie Vaughan, and Dulany Deyerle.

HAS EVERY DSF STUDENT her own phone? Commercial student Ricky Stringer is only using a special set borrowed from the C. and P. Telephone Co. for office practice in placing business calls.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT. Mr. Ray Long, Miss Peggy Dulin, Mr. Jon Massello, Miss Florence Lawrence.

Sophomore swifties chase world records

IT'S UP AND OVER with a graceful swing for Elaine Funderburke as she performs with practiced skill on the parallel bars before Barbara Valentine, Keith Neale, Bettie Jo Rudy, Sandra McGehee, and Nancy Holt. Miss Dulin lends a reassuring hand.

Runners, take your mark, get set, bang! Stretching weary muscles, sophomore physical education classes trotted relays and ran endurance tests in preparation for state physical fitness tests to be given in the fall of 1960. Instructors kept charts and scores for each test or event and turned results in to the State Department of Education to establish a state-wide norm.

In the classroom sessions, sophomores studied mental health and the harmful effects of alcohol and narcotics, with the aid of movies and class debates. Girls learned the rules of basketball and football as spectator sports were emphasized. To illustrate these, they exhibited equipment and made reports on their favorite sports.

With the advent of spring came the boys' Five-Star Program, a series of track events held every year. Boys tested their skills against the national average scores and the scores of world record-holders to compile points in each of the five events. Included in the program were the high jump, broad jump, one hundred-yard dash, shot put, and half-mile run.

Each spring the events had been held in the separate gym classes, but this year they served as a proving ground for the late spring intramural track meet. Every class contributed at least one competitor to each event in the meet, but unlike the Five Star Program, the meet included several other events found in inter-scholastic track meets.

To learn new teaching methods, Miss Florence Lawrence and Miss Peggy Dulin attended a physical education work shop at Camp Richmond the first weekend in April.

Draftsmen, builders enter local competition

With the slap of a paint brush and the scratch of sandpaper, home economics students became carpenters as they hammered and polished old furniture. This was part of the three-year program designed to teach the importance of a safe, healthful, and attractive home.

To supplement the practical course in nutrition, sewing, and cooking, school nurse Mrs. Jean O'Keefe conducted a special class in child care and home nursing, using equipment loaned by the Red Cross.

Following a competitive examination, senior Anne Rowe became DSF's 1960 "Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow."

Throughout the rear wing of the school, the sound of buss saws from the shop drowned out Spanish accents and band music this spring as the industrial arts students busied themselves with their project entries for the Henrico County Industrial Exhibition. All industrial arts, arts and crafts, and mechanical drawing classes chose the best of their projects to be judged in competition with entries from other Henrico schools on April 30.

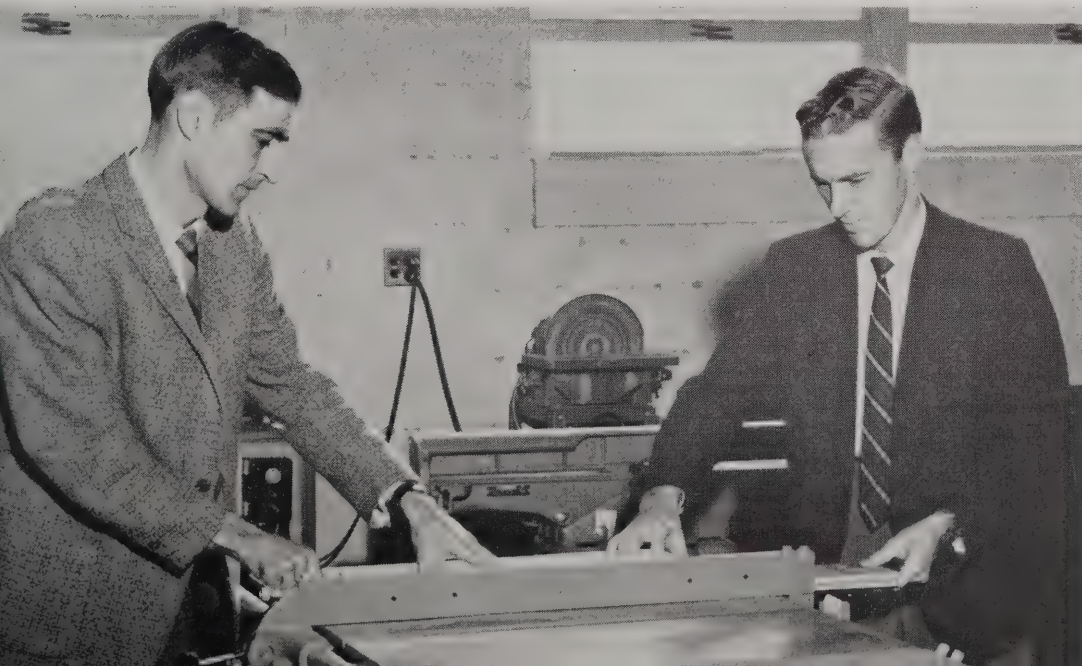

Not only did the industrial arts courses provide a basis for numerous engineering careers, but they gave potential homeowners a fundamental knowledge of how to take care of their homes. Several mechanical drawing students put their creative energies to work by designing house plans.

On April 23, Mr. Richard Anthony attended the meeting of the District Industrial Education Teachers held at E. C. Glass High School in Lynchburg. The teachers met to discuss classroom techniques and to plan curriculum for future years.

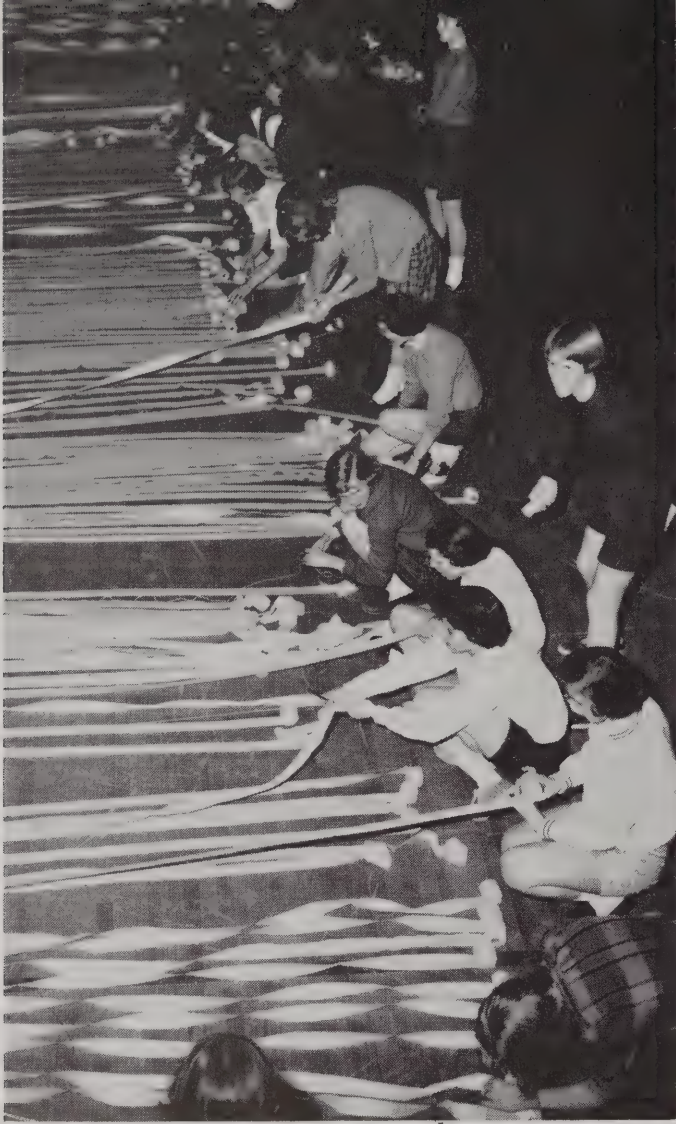

A COAT OF POLISH applied by home economics student Nancy Niegro gives a scratched and worn table a new look. Classes in furniture improvement led to a special project of redecorating the department living room, improving the lighting, and hanging pictures.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS TEACHERS Mr. Richard Anthony, shop instructor, and Mr. Henry Wheeler, mechanical drawing teacher, plan much-needed storage cabinets for the drafting students' drawing boards, T-squares, and other tools. The cabinets were constructed by students.

HOME ECONOMICS teacher Mrs. Martha Perkins looks over material to be cut out and made into stuffed toys.

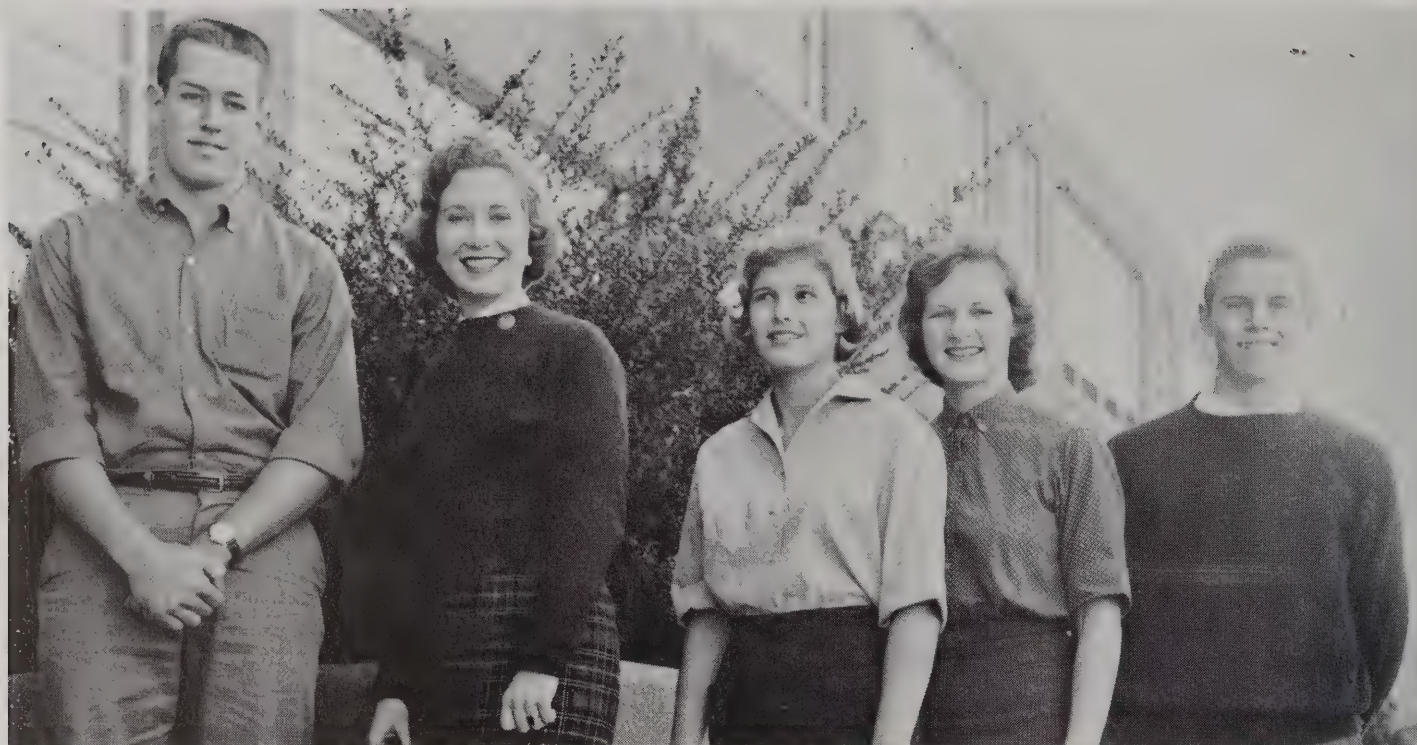

HAVE YOU EVER REALIZED that each class group has a distinct personality? Have you watched the senior boys cluster around the radiator by the boys' locker room? The sophomore boys line the radiator by the girls' locker room, and the girls drift up and down the hall in shifting groups. In the cafeteria, seniors have their line, and the juniors have the auxiliary cafeteria. After lunch have you found seniors seeking a secluded spot to study for a test later in the day? The sophomores go outside. How many hours have you spent with your class on projects, stretching crepe paper, painting sets, cleaning up and selling tickets? At a class meeting in the gym, have you wondered how to vote?

HOW WELL DO YOU KNOW THE STUDENTS?

Sophs swing rhythmically to South Sea beat

Though the April air was still unseasonably nippy, members of the sophomore class and their guests imagined themselves cooled by south sea breezes as they danced in a tropic setting to the music of steel guitars and throbbing jungle rhythms on April 9. Tables decorated with grass huts and leis worn by all the dancers carried out the island decor established by the colorful mural, potted palms, and exotic jungle growth. The Flattops provided music, while entertainers included the Mal Freeman singers and a quartet of sophomore and junior girls, Betty Jean Highfill, Sue Hodges, Betty

Woodson, and Jeri Lewis, who introduced a song written by Betty Jean. Following the intermission class president Bill Jones presented sponsor Miss Pat Forrest with a white cimbidium corsage.

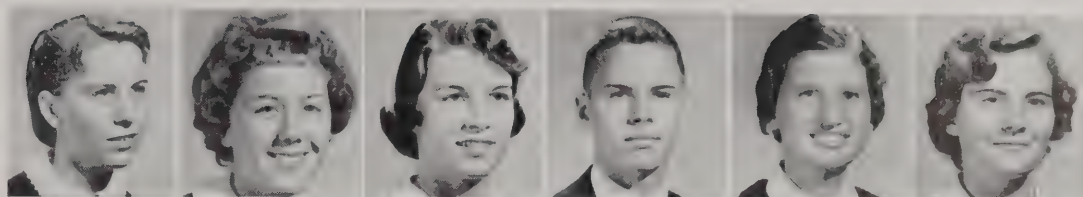

To raise funds for the dance, the sophomores decided early in the year to set a membership fee of fifty cents. A bake sale provided funds to decorate the Homecoming float for the sophomore class princess, Betty Abernathy. Other sophomores in the Homecoming court were Pam Curtis, representing the Hi-Y, Jeri Lewis representing the SCA, and Phoebe Flinn representing the Spanish Club.

Juniors resume classwork amid signs of summer

Tanned faces, bleached hair, circle pins, and madras reappeared as the juniors, assuming their places as upperclassmen, again took up their studies and activities. The only project necessary to supplement the class dues was the annual junior Talent Night, which invaded the underwater sanctum of Davy Jones' locker.

As Christmas neared, Mrs. Mildred Harris' daily announcements on the progress of the class rings created excitement throughout the class. Just before the yuletide holiday, the long-awaited symbols of an upper-classman's status arrived.

Because of the size of the junior and senior classes, the traditional Junior-Senior Prom became two separate dances. However, juniors began a new tradition by doing the last minute decorations and serving as clean-up committee for the seniors' prom. Their own prom in late May was followed by trips to the beach and to river cottages.

Seniors get early insight into their new status

With faces still sunburned, the Class of 1960 met in the auditorium the first week of school. The under-privileged seventh graders who were so awed by the new school in 1954 were at long last seniors. Mr. Mears reminded them that they must now set the examples, that college pressure was on, and that they could leave assemblies first if they could run faster than the lower classmen. They also learned that the left cafeteria line was for seniors only, but with 279 in the class, it often proved to be the longest.

In November, the seniors left school in the early darkness after hours of rehearsal and set building for class play, "The Diary of Anne Frank." With the spirit of Anne herself spreading throughout the class, the production received a standing ovation at the first performance, and for the first time at DSF a repeat performance was given the following week.

One success behind them, seniors settled down to the complex maze of college bulletins and applications. Concentration on senior government, physics, and other advanced subjects was necessary but difficult, for activities filled the fleeting time, and plans emerged for more projects to finance the Senior Court Dance and graduation. Repeating a successful book cover sale from their junior year, the seniors also sold personal cards.

After Christmas came four snow holidays, and some seniors advanced from the fine art of sledding to the shaky one of skiing. Others, certain that the snow would be gone by March 26, stayed inside to make flowers and to begin the mammoth task of stretching seven miles of crepe paper for the dance.

The morning of March 26 dawned with more snow. Dismayed, but determined not to have their dance snowed out, the seniors went back to the gym to finish transforming it into the walled garden of a Southern mansion. When at ten o'clock the sun came out, spirits warmed with the weather. That evening "Plantation Splendor" presented the Senior Court, while Mallory Freeman and Dodie Benson reigned over the Class of 1960.

After the dance, seniors and dates scurried home to change into informal clothes for the party at the William Byrd Hotel. When it ended, they went off to other private parties for scrambled eggs and cocoa, before returning home at dawn.

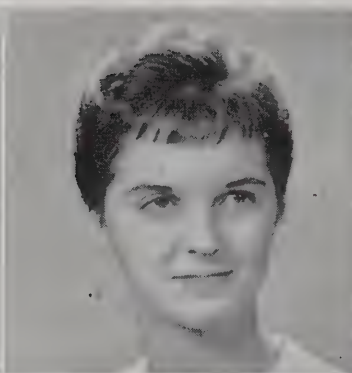

On May 26, the day after Class Night, the seniors rallied together for the last time as a group. At Camp Kentwood for their final fling, they spent the day swimming, playing softball, eating, and signing the 1960 HISTORIAN.

On June 10 as they finally donned their caps and gowns, the seniors sat and listened while Margaret Cole, Bill Marmon, and Bill Sheldon represented them as speakers. For so long a major part of school life, they had been in on every activity since the beginning of the school. The Class of 1960 had helped make DSF outstanding while they themselves had grown. Now they were alumni.

HOW OFTEN DO YOU GO to the drugstore after school to eat or to use "Doc" Fratkin's phone? Have you seen a boy getting a hair-cut before school in the Westbury Shopping Center? Do you know Alex's last name? Away from school — "Shadwell's" means meeting ground for king-size groups. Did you see the Village in February with huge banks of snow pushed to the side of the parking lot? Have you ever seen that parking lot completely empty? Have you trudged in and out of stores seeking employment? Can you remember which stores have bags with something printed on them? How many store managers do you know? How many yearbook advertisers do you know?

HOW WELL DO YOU KNOW THE COMMUNITY?

Dear Betty, it has been so much fun being in Chemistry class with you. That is such a wild class anyway! Betty, I know you are just so smart you'd probably get a 100 on the exam with all the studying you did. In Prof. Ed's class when we were doing base ball, I remember when you played to win. You could probably have replaced the head midget. Best of luck to a wonderful wife, Susan Williams.

Are you that
"Special"
Gal
we're looking for?

We hope so. Because we have interesting jobs for "special" gals here at the telephone company.

If you're alert and like people, you'll like it here. The surroundings are pleasant, the pay is good right from the start—and you'll have lots of opportunity for advancement and raises.

There's a "special" extra, too. You'll have that wonderful feeling of making an important contribution to your community. Come talk to us about telephone work. We'd love to meet you!

You're a very lucky girl, to have such a fine fellow as M. Minn.
Minn has a great sense of humor and is lots of fun to be with. He and Don & Tim are funny as heck to be with. A little but you can forgive this one small fault.
Best of luck

 "bodies" in the class - I won't mention any names. Show us how we adored the teacher! Our skit, I am the grade we got - UGH! Who cares! I hope maybe next year we'll have french in the summer - if you don't graduate during the summer!
 Watch out on those dark roads! Only kidding! Normandy one day when you are running

Dear Betty Anne,
Well, it's been a long year - I'm glad to see my dear sweet friends who are still younger & better. Good luck at 7 suffering. Good luck at 7 and with that. I know that woman about those college and want have any trouble at all. I'll keep my word let myself taken care of! At any rate, soon as I get together on Saturdays again, the go to school with me sometime. I'd love for you to will have your father's generous. Happy Chipmunk next time your father's generous. Happy Chipmunk hunting, and Cheek yourself!!
Love,
Nancy Spencer

Dear Betty - Whenever there is a deep silence around me, I shall think of this homeroom - and how, with you all, there was never a silence, even a shallow one! But we've had some interesting talks, and I have enjoyed it from time to time. Be good, and don't back into any more big cars! E. N. M.

Good Luck to a real Sweet
Gal and Always be real nice like you've always been
